Crisis Diplomacy The Great Powers Since The Mid Nineteenth Century:

Crisis Diplomacy James L. Richardson, 1994-09-29 Although much has been written on international crises the literature suffers from a lack of historical depth and a proliferation of competing theoretical frameworks Through case studies drawing on the rich historical experience of crisis diplomacy James Richardson offers an integrated analysis based on a critical assessment of the main theoretical approaches Due weight is given to systemic and structural factors but also to the specific historical factors of each case and to theories which do not presuppose rationality as well as those which do Crisis diplomacy the major political choices made by decision makers and their strategies judgments and misjudgments is found to play a crucial role in each of the case studies This broad historical inquiry is especially timely when the ending of the Cold War has removed the settled parameters within which the superpowers conducted their crisis diplomacy Crisis Diplomacy Under Discussion Samantha Smith, 2015-11-17 Essay from the year 2012 in the subject Politics Topic Peace and Conflict Security language English abstract This paper will argue that though the character of crises occupying the international agenda may have changed the skills and expertise possessed by professional diplomats have proven to be irreplaceable in addressing crisis situations It will do this in two parts First it will briefly examine traditional formations of international crisis and crisis diplomacy arguing that these concepts need to be adjusted to encompass the contemporary global environment Second it will compare the efficacy of state and non state agents in mediating crisis situations demonstrating that professional diplomats are still without equal Shaping U.S. Military Forces for the Asia-Pacific Michael R. Kraig, 2014-06-04 The first twenty years of post Cold War US defense and diplomatic policies toward Asia have looked a good deal like the previous 50 namely continued deterrence based upon overwhelming offensive military predominance In East Asia all powers harbor common and divergent interests based on fragmented nationalist identities and complex economic interdependence In this multipolar Asian system new Chinese military capabilities could support both the wish to secure its own interests as well as a more expansive vision for regional leadership which might harbor a destabilizing geopolitical agenda How the United States addresses this reality via military procurements and employment concepts for the Asian theater could either detract from or enhance crisis stability The US defense establishment must reorient its force posture to save money manage conflicts of interest and prevent future interstate crises This analysis provides a framework for how the United States should ideally structure and use military power so as to best support the diplomatic resolution of conflicting interests without resorting to full scale warfare It also critiques the usual Western military focus on offensive strategic predominance in force postures itself often fuelled by the unrealistic pursuit of the opponent's complete submission via victory in decisive battles
