The Adoption of Artificial Intelligence and Inertia in Higher Education James Hutson, 2025-10-01 This research monograph explores the complex resistance to integrating Artificial Intelligence AI within higher education institutions Despite the significant potential of AI to enhance education faculty adoption remains inconsistent and is often met with skepticism This book investigates key factors contributing to this resistance such as leadership deficits funding barriers cultural inertia and faculty attitudes toward technological change Drawing on qualitative and quantitative empirical data case studies from U S and international institutions and theoretical analysis the book uncovers underlying concerns about job security and professional identity It points to actionable strategies for overcoming these barriers and will be relevant for scholars researchers advanced students and educators grappling with issues navigating technological integration in academia and with interests in the sociology of education educational technology and higher education administration

Artificial Intelligence in Education Ben Du Boulay, R. Mizoguchi, 1997 The theme of this book is Knowledge and Media in Learning Systems and papers that explore the emerging roles of intelligent multimedia and distributed technologies as well as computer supported collaboration within that theme are included The spread of topics is very wide encompassing both well established areas such as student modelling as well as more novel topics such as distributed intelligent tutoring on the World Wide Web Far from undermining the need to understand how learning and teaching interact the newer media continue to emphasise the interdependence of these two processes Collaboration and tools for collaboration are the major topics of interest Understanding how human learners collaborate how peer tutoring works and how the computer can play a useful role as either a more able or even a less able learning partner are all explored here

Digital Access and Museums as Platforms Caroline Wilson-Barnao, 2021-07-25

Digital Access and Museums as Platforms draws on interviews with museum practitioners along with a range of case studies from public and private institutions in order to investigate the tensions and benefits involved in making cultural collections available using digital technologies Taking a media and critical studies approach to the museum and raising questions about the role of privately owned search engines in facilitating museum experiences the book questions who collects what for whom objects are collected and what purpose these objects and collections serve Connecting fieldwork undertaken in Australia and New Zealand with the global practices of technology companies Wilson Barnao brings attention to an emerging new model of digital ownership and moderation Considering the synergising of these institutions with media systems which are now playing a more prominent role in facilitating access to culture the book also explores the motivations of different cultural workers for constructing the museum as a mediatised location Digital Access and Museums as Platforms will be of interest to academics and students working in the fields of museum studies art culture media studies and digital humanities Weighing in on conversations about how technologies are being incorporated into museums the book should also be useful to practitioners working in museums and galleries around the world
