Research and Advanced Technology for Digital Libraries Christos Nikolaou, Constantine Stephanidis, 2003-07-31
Digital Libraries are complex and advanced forms of information systems which extend and augment their physical counterparts by amplifying existing resources and services and enabling development of new kinds of human problem solving and expression. Their complexity arises from the data rich domain of discourse as well as from extended demands for multi disciplinary input involving distributed systems architectures, structured digital documents, collaboration support, human computer interaction, information filtering etc. In addition to the broad range of technical issues, ethics and intellectual property rights add to the complication that is normally associated with the development, maintenance and use of Digital Libraries. The Second European Conference on Digital Libraries ECDL 98 builds upon the success of the first of this series of European Conferences on Research and Advanced Technology for Digital Libraries held last year in Pisa, Italy, September 1-3, 1997. This series of conferences is partially funded by the TMR Programme of the European Commission and is actively supported and promoted by the European Research Consortium on Informatics and Mathematics (ERCIM). The aim is to bring together the different communities involved in the development of Digital Libraries to review progress and to discuss strategies, research and technological development, RTD issues as well as specific topics related to the European context. These communities include professionals from universities, research centres, industry, government agencies, public libraries etc.
