Because many people and ecosystems share or constitute any given place they all have a stake in the outcome of what any of us do in regard to environmental problems. It is not surprising that issues are hotly contested given the many divergent interests, needs, and preferences of a community's members, much less those of people downstream who are affected by the consequences of our actions or of outside parties who play a part, including those who would speak on behalf of the ecosystems. Thus, we not only must make careful individual decisions concerning the environment but need to improve the way we operate socially, especially given the roles and responsibilities we have as environmental professionals, private sector developers, public policy makers, and staff or engaged citizens. To aid in resolving our environmental dilemmas, Mugerauer and Manzo focus on the decision making process. Their goal is to help readers become more aware of the worldviews, beliefs, and values that enter into the decisions they make and to better resolve differences with others. To guide readers in thinking about their own positions and how to approach ethical decisions, Mugerauer and Manzo employ a number of exercises and cases to investigate the choices and issues that different stakeholders face, for example, concerning sustainability. Additionally, the book presents alternatives in terms of formalized ethical principles, the major ethical theories, and professional codes of ethics.

The findings are invaluable reading for students and practitioners. Eco-chic Sandy Black, 2008. In a comprehensive survey of this highly pertinent subject, leading academic Sandy Black examines the way the fashion industry is changing to accommodate the environmental concerns of the twenty-first century. She exposes the naked truth behind the clothes we wear, exploring alternate practices and assessing their feasibility. Using case studies of designers from the catwalks and the high street, including Katharine Hamnett, Marks and Spencer, and Linda Loudermilk, the book illustrates how these processes are finding their way into the industry and shows how ethical fashion has moved on from its traditional connotations of hemp shirts and rope sandals. Fashion and environmental awareness are two concerns that do not comfortably sit side by side. Over the past ten years, high street fashion, led by global chains, has become ever more affordable and disposable. The sourcing of materials, the manufacture, and the distribution of clothes have become the dirty secrets of the beautiful industry. Eco Chic continues Black Dog's commitment to the environment and to responsible design. Lavishly illustrated, it is a timely publication that will appeal equally to the fashion-conscious and environmentally aware. Cognitive Biases in Design Joo-Hwa Bay, 2001 Living in Earth Tom Sanya, 2007.
