Learn the process of establishing a MongoDB connection using Node.js

View on Stack Overflow

Establish a DB

To connect to MongoDB in Node.js, you will need to install the `mongodb` module. This can be done by running the following command in your terminal:

npm install mongodb

Once the module is installed, you can create a connection to MongoDB by using the `mongodb` class. The following code shows how to create a connection to a MongoDB database named `mydb` on a server running on localhost:

const MongoClient = require('mongodb').MongoClient;

const uri = 'mongodb://localhost:27010/mydb';

const client = new MongoClient(uri, {
  useNewUrlParser: true,
  useUnifiedTopology: true

async function connect() {
  await client.connect();
  console.log('Connected successfully to MongoDB');
