The Econometrics of Panel Data László Mátyás, Patrick Sevestre, 2007 This completely restructured updated third edition of The Econometrics of Panel Data first published in 1992 provides a general overview of the econometrics of panel data both from a theoretical and from an applied viewpoint Since the pioneering papers by Kuh Mundlak Hoch and Balestra and Nerlove the pooling of cross section and time series data has become an increasingly popular way of quantifying economic relationships Each series provides information lacking in the other so a combination of both leads to more accurate and reliable results than would be achievable by one type of series alone This third enhanced edition provides a complete and up to date presentation of theoretical developments as well as surveys about how econometric tools are used to study firms and household s behaviors and or more macroeconomic phenomena such as economic growth It contains sixteen entirely new chapters while the others have been largely revised to account for recent developments in the field

Econometrics of Panel Data Erik Biørn, 2017 Panel data is a data type increasingly used in research in economics social sciences and medicine Its primary characteristic is that the data variation goes jointly over space across individuals firms countries etc and time over years months etc Panel data allow examination of problems that cannot be handled by cross section data or time series data Panel data analysis is a core field in modern econometrics and multivariate statistics and studies based on such data occupy a growing part of the field in many other disciplines The book is intended as a text for master and advanced undergraduate courses It may also be useful for PhD students writing theses in empirical and applied economics and readers conducting empirical work on their own The book attempts to take the reader gradually from simple models and methods in scalar simple vector notation to more complex models in matrix notation A distinctive feature is that more attention is given to unbalanced panel data the measurement error problem random coefficient approaches the interface between panel data and aggregation and the interface between unbalanced panels and truncated and censored data sets The 12 chapters are intended to be largely self contained although there is also natural progression Most of the chapters contain commented examples based on genuine data mainly taken from panel data applications to economics Although the book inter alia through its use of examples is aimed primarily at students of economics and econometrics it may also be useful for readers in social sciences psychology and medicine provided they have a sufficient background in statistics notably basic regression analysis and elementary linear algebra
