Webbing Cyberfeminist Practice Kristine Blair, Radhika Gajjala, Christine Tulley, 2009. This is the first book collection to devote itself exclusively to issues related to women's lives in a culture of technology. As such it is a key addition to feminist new media scholarship in computers and composition. The book holds special appeal as the editors have put into conversation chapters of authors from diverse disciplines. The value that is placed on cross disciplinary work is further demonstrated in the mix of theoretical, pedagogical and rhetorical research that enriches the book in its entirety. To explore the variety of cyberfeminist webs the collection has been organized around three themes. Chapters in Forming Virtual Kinships examine cyberfeminist practices that do not neatly operate in standard academic communities such as classrooms or cultural centers, instead foregrounding the extent to which female communities evolve around aspects of women's daily lives as mothers, consumers and workers. Chapters in Redrawing Academic Boundaries offer a glimpse of practice within more defined pedagogical spaces, providing a sense of the ways in which classroom and community network boundaries are often blurred and disrupted. Last, the text moves to explore how cyberfeminist webs both on and beyond the borders of standard spaces are developed using a variety of theoretical standpoints.

Streampunks Robert Kyncl, Maany Peyvan, 2017-09-05. An entertainment and tech insider, YouTube's chief business officer delivers the first detailed account of the rise of YouTube, the creative minds who have capitalized on it to become pop culture stars, and how streaming video is revolutionizing the media world. In the past ten years, the internet video platform YouTube has changed media and entertainment as profoundly as the invention of film, radio and television did more than six decades earlier. Streampunks is a firsthand account of this upstart company, examining how it evolved and where it will take us next. Sharing behind the scenes stories of YouTube's most influential stars, Streampunks like Tyler Oakley, Lilly Singh and Casey Neistat, and the dealmakers brokering the future of entertainment like Scooter Braun and Shane Smith. Robert Kyncl uses his experiences at three of the most innovative media companies, HBO, Netflix and YouTube, to tell the story of streaming video and this modern pop culture juggernaut. Collaborating with Google speechwriter Maany Peyvan, Kyncl explains how the new rules of entertainment are being written and how and why the media landscape is radically changing.

while giving aspiring Streamponks some necessary advice to launch their own new media careers Kyncl persuasively argues that despite concerns about technology impoverishing artists or undermining artistic quality the new media revolution is actually fueling a creative boom and leading to more compelling diverse and immersive content Enlightening surprising and thoroughly entertaining Streamponks is a revelatory ride through the new media rebellion that is reshaping our world
