Words John Warner,2025-02-04 A veteran writing teacher makes a moving Rick Wormeli argument that writing is a form of thinking and feeling and shows why it can't be replaced by AI In the age of artificial intelligence drafting an essay is as simple as typing a prompt and pressing enter What does this mean for the art of writing According to longtime writing teacher John Warner not very much More Than Words argues that generative AI programs like ChatGPT not only can kill the student essay but should since these assignments don't challenge students to do the real work of writing To Warner writing is thinking discovering your ideas while trying to capture them on a page and feeling grappling with what it fundamentally means to be human The fact that we ask students to complete so many assignments that a machine could do is a sign that something has gone very wrong with writing instruction More Than Words calls for us to use AI as an opportunity to reckon with how we work with words and how all of us should rethink our relationship with writing AI Can't Write, But You

AI from a Creative Writers Perspective Seth Blanken, 2025-08-17 As a writer I've always been fascinated by the interplay of imagination truth and craft When I first encountered artificial intelligence it felt like stepping into a story still being written a narrative with infinite possibilities yet shadowed by uncertainty AI is no longer a distant concept confined to science fiction it's a force reshaping how we create think and connect This book AI from a Creative Writer's Perspective explores this phenomenon through a writer's lens examining its creative potential ethical complexities and transformative impact on storytelling itself AI is the muse a tool that amplifies human creativity From generating prose to sparking ideas AI can act as a collaborator offering writers new ways to explore their craft But this partnership raises questions Where does inspiration end and automation begin Can a machine truly understand the soul of a story AI is the shadow reflecting its ethical and societal implications As writers we are storytellers of the human condition and AI challenges us to confront issues of authenticity bias and control How do we wield a tool that can amplify voices but also distort truths What does it mean to create in an era where algorithms shape narratives AI is the mirror a reflection of ourselves It forces us to examine our own creative processes biases and place in a world increasingly intertwined with technology As writers we must ask How does AI redefine what it means to tell a story and how do we preserve the human heart at its core In these pages I invite you to explore these three dimensions with me not as a technologist but as a creative writer navigating the uncharted terrain of AI This is not a technical manual or a futuristic manifesto it s a meditation on creativity responsibility and the stories we tell in an age of intelligent machines Let s step into this narrative together with curiosity and caution to discover what lies on the other side
