Artificial Intelligence for Cultural Heritage Organisations Lise Jaillant, Claire Warwick, Paul Gooding, Katherine Aske, Glen Layne-Worthey, J. Stephen Downie, 2025-06-12 The question of how artificial intelligence and machine learning should be applied to data in libraries and other cultural institutions is a challenge shared by heritage professionals computer scientists and digital humanities scholars As the number of digitised and born digital records grows archival practices are looking to automated systems to manage workloads and make cultural records more accessible AI is playing a crucial role in data management systems within the cultural heritage sector and information professionals are looking for ways to navigate current challenges and opportunities Additionally sector professionals and scholars are benefiting from the many new affordances and innovative research questions offered by using large scale digital collections as data Navigating Artificial Intelligence for Cultural Heritage Organisations explores the innovative technologies and approaches to digitised and born digital records within libraries and archives across the UK and US and beyond It brings together chapters from experts across the fields of digital humanities computer science and information science alongside professionals within the library and archival sector The authors explore technologies being applied to digitised and born digital records within libraries archives and other heritage organisations including innovative approaches in computer vision Chat GPT and user experience The volume has been designed to reflect current and state of the art technologies and innovations for the preservation and accessibility of digitised and born digital records to help navigate the future of AI for cultural heritage organisations

README W. Patrick Mccray, 2025-12-02 The essential role that the oldest literary technology books played in making computers popular and pervasive In README historian Patrick McCray argues that in order for computers to become ubiquitous people first had to become interested in them learn about them and take the machines seriously A powerful catalyst for this transformation was ironically one of the oldest information technologies we have books The author uses a carefully chosen selection of books some iconic and others obscure to describe this technological revolution as it unfolded in the half century after 1945 The book begins with a fundamental question How does a new technology become well known and widespread McCray answers this by using books as a window into significant moments in the history of computing books publishing and American culture README offers a literary history of computers and more broadly information technologies between World War II and the dot com crash of the early twenty first century From the electronic brains and cybernetics craze of the 1940s to the birth of AI the rise of the personal computer and the Internet driven financial frenzy of the 1990s books have proven a durable and essential way for people to learn how to use and think about computers By offering a readable half century of bookish history README explains how computers became popular and pervasive
