Aspholm,2020-02-04 Chicago has long served as a symbol of urban pathology in the public imagination The city s staggering levels of violence and entrenched gang culture occupy a central place in the national discourse yet remain poorly understood and are often stereotyped Views from the Streets explains the dramatic transformation of black street gangs on Chicago s South Side during the early twenty first century shedding new light on why gang violence persists and what might be done to address it Drawing on years of community work and in depth interviews with gang members Roberto R Aspholm describes in vivid detail the internal rebellions that shattered the city s infamous corporate style African American street gangs He explores how in the wake of these uprisings young gang members have radically refashioned gang culture and organization on Chicago s South Side rejecting traditional hierarchies and ideologies and instead embracing a fierce ethos of personal autonomy that has made contemporary gang violence increasingly spontaneous and unregulated In calling attention to the historical context of these issues and to the elements of resistance embedded in Chicago s contemporary gang culture Aspholm challenges conventional views of gang members as inherently pathological He critically analyzes highly touted universal violence prevention strategies depicting street level realities to illuminate why they have ultimately failed to reduce levels of bloodshed An unprecedented analysis of the nature and meaning of gang violence Views from the Streets proposes an alternative framework for addressing the seemingly intractable issues of inequality despair and violence in Chicago

Race and Real Estate Adrienne R. Brown,Valerie Smith,2015 Race and Real Estate brings together new work by architects sociologists legal scholars and literary critics that qualifies and complicates traditional narratives of race property and citizenship in the United States Rather than simply rehearsing the standard account of how blacks were historically excluded from homeownership the authors of these essays explore how the raced history of property affects understandings of home and citizenship While the narrative of race and real estate in America has usually been relayed in terms of institutional subjugation dispossession and forced segregation the essays collected in this volume acknowledge the validity of these histories while presenting new perspectives on this story Gang Leader for a Day Sudhir Alladi Venkatesh,2008 The story of the young sociologist who studied a Chicago crack dealing gang from the inside captured the world's attention when it was first described in Freakonomics. This is the full story of how Venkatesh managed to gain entrance into the gang, what he learned, and how his method revolutionized the academic establishment. When first-year grad student Venkatesh walked into one of Chicago's most notorious housing projects, he was looking for people to take a survey on urban poverty. He never imagined that he would befriend a gang leader and spend the better part of a decade inside the projects under his protection. He got to know the neighborhood dealers, crackheads, squatters, prostitutes, pimps, activists, cops, organizers, and officials. From his position of unprecedented access, he observed the gang as they operated their crack-selling business and rose or fell within the ranks of the gang's complex organizational structure. From publisher description: American Project Sudhir Alladi Venkatesh, 2000-11-13. Based on nearly a decade of fieldwork in Chicago's Robert Taylor Homes, American Project is the first comprehensive story of daily life in an American public housing complex. Venkatesh draws on his relationships with tenants, gang members, police officers, and local organizations to offer an intimate portrait of an inner-city community. Off the Books Sudhir Alladi Venkatesh, 2006. Explores the desperate, dangerous, and remarkable ways in which the residents of Maquis Park, a poor African American neighborhood on Chicago's Southside, struggle to survive. Sociological Abstracts Leo P. Following on the heels of the Harlem Renaissance, the Chicago Renaissance was a resonant flourishing of African American arts, literature, theater, music, and intellectualism from 1930 to 1955. Anne Meis Knupfer's The Chicago Black Renaissance and Women's Activism demonstrates the complexity of black women's many vital contributions to this unique cultural flowering. The book examines various groups of black female activists, including writers and actresses, social workers, artists, school teachers, and women's club members, to document the impact of social class, gender, nativity, educational attainment, and professional affiliations on their activism. Together, these women worked to sponsor black history and literature, to protest overcrowded schools, and to act as a force for improved South Side housing and employment opportunities Knupfer also reveals the crucial role these women played in founding and sustaining black cultural institutions such as the first African American art museum in the country the first African American library in Chicago and various African American literary journals and newspapers As a point of contrast Knupfer also examines the overlooked activism of working class and poor women in the Ida B Wells and Altgeld Gardens housing projects Housing Policy Debate ,2012
