Informal Workplace Learning and Employee Development Malgorzata Rozkwitalska-Welenc, Beata A. Basinska, Alicja Dettlaff, 2024-06-03 The new paradigm in employee development assumes that employees should proactively direct their learning and growth. Most workplace learning is basically informal and occurs through daily work routines, peer-to-peer interactions, and networking and typically brings about significant positive outcomes to both individuals and organizations. Yet workplace learning always occurs in a predefined context and this context has recently changed. Hereafter many people have been delegated to work from home or any other remote location. Many employees would like to maintain remote or hybrid work design in the future as well. In this research monograph, the authors explore an unexplored topic in social science research concerning proactive employee development through informal learning in new ways of working (NWW). The monograph will be of interest to students and researchers in organizational studies, organizational behavior, organizational psychology, and organizational learning, as well as human resource professionals concerned with employee development and the changing nature of work.

The book also explores how increasing digitalisation, the rise of the gig economy, and the COVID

19 pandemic have impacted working practices and how this relates to precarious employment Other chapters are dedicated to issues of workplace organisation including female leadership work life balance and well being The book goes on to explore how climate change and policies such as Universal Basic Income may shape the future of work in the near future Each chapter also includes useful pedagogical resources including practice exam questions key concepts and definitions and further readings Therefore the book will be therefore essential reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students studying the sociology of work business management and organisation
