After the Pandemic Randy Whitaker, 2022-10-10

Many things define a job seeker: experience, education, first impressions, connections, passion, and the value you might bring to the company you wish to work for. For decades, the perceived ideal candidate would have all of the above. Most of the above, however, a good candidate would have a four-year college degree. To a great extent, an employer still would like someone with a four-year college degree. However, I believe this is changing. The need for those who work with their hands and those who are willing to work their way up through the various levels of an organization is becoming more and more desired by companies. The time it will take you to earn your degree, you could be making a nice living and will have accrued zero debt in the process. Plus, after working in an industry of your choice, something you do have an interest in, even a passion for, you may be on equal footing with a newly hired college grad based on the four years you have been working in your industry of choice as you continue to work your way up through the company. You will find the more value you bring to a company, the more they will look to you to assume great responsibility. Typically, the more responsibility, the greater the paycheck. What makes this book timely is the fact that as COVID-19 winds down, we are seeing many labor shortages in many areas and industries. Now is the absolute best time to go to an industry experiencing a labor shortage or enter one of the numerous industries researched in this book and get yourself the job you always wanted without the cost and time involved with getting a four-year college education. I have nothing against getting a degree, and there are still many fields where they will always be mandatory; however, the trades, service industries, government, railroads, law enforcement, plus many others, will welcome you with open arms without the need for a four-year degree. I hope this book helps.

Expanding Horizons in Open and Distance Learning Jennifer Roberts, Mutuota Kigotho, Adrian Stagg, 2020-06-09

This book brings together a collection of articles that were presented at the Open and Distance Learning Association of Australia (ODLAA) conference in February 2017. The authors share the common agenda of creating meaningful research in the field of distance education. Distinct themes in educational research, including open distance and flexible education, emerged from the conference, and this collection addresses each of these themes. The themes explored include teaching and learning, playing an integral role in Open and Distance Learning, ODL research, ways in which technology is used in the teaching of science subjects, how technology is applied in everyday lives, specifically in the areas of transport, accommodation, and in ordering food, the important and often neglected area of research related to staff development and competencies, research regarding Open Educational Practices.

OEP and the importance of distance education in developing countries where online interaction is often a challenge largely because of the lack of stable internet connectivity This book was originally published as a special issue of Distance Education
