ABSTRACT

The Internet started as a divine gift to the human society, it was meant to enlighten the human society by transferring knowledge, making available all the information needed for human well being, growth and prosperity. But as the Internet grew, it created its own set of problems—one of the key ones being Internet Addiction. According to Dr. Jerald J. Block, from the Center for Internet Addiction, “Internet addiction” affects as many as one in eight Americans. Block also defined Internet addiction as a compulsive activity involving excessive use, withdrawal and negative repercussions including social isolation, lying, low achievement and fatigue. As the Internet grows in Malaysia, Internet addiction is surfacing as a key problem, particularly amongst the younger generation here. This research outlines a method to examine the level of Internet addiction amongst Malaysian youth. The purpose of our study is to identify the use of Internet among Malaysian youth and the relation of excessive use to the addictive level. We have devised an online survey to study the Internet use among the youth; the findings of this study indicate that the youth are indeed susceptible to Internet addiction.

With the evolution of technology and the creation of the Internet, the cyber world has created a culture of on-line communication and virtual connectivity. Decades of Internet growth and with it the usage of computer systems have brought about a change in peoples lifestyle which rely on Internet—just a few clicks away for all the important and abundance of information available online. Un-doubtly the Internet has revolutionized the way we think and occupies an important place in our private lives and the society as a whole.

Internet addiction inherits the symptoms of chemical addiction, and yet, it does not consume any chemical substance like other drug addiction, alcohol addiction, and so forth. Internet addiction can be well defined through the observation of one’s behavior [1]. The definition of behavioral addiction varies, however, one may think of behavioral addictions as a repetition of a habit that has a potential to cause imbalance in lifestyle or social issues or worst of all, affect one’s health. For behavioral addictions, there is always a sign of uncontrollable force when the addicts try to control or cut back the amount of addictive use. It was suggested that behavioral addiction acts as a medium to escape from the underlying emotional stress [2].

Over the last couple of years, Internet addiction has become a global concern to the public and can be classified as a health issue. There is even a proposal to include Internet addiction in the next revision of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorder 5th Edition (DSM-V), as a cause of mental disorder [3]. Addictive behaviors were suggested to cause improper life style and impairment to personalities, especially amongst the young. The education system has evolved and the use of technology is now encouraged at much younger ages. Children are getting exposed to computer technology and the Internet at early ages.

Even though the study on Internet addiction is not new to clinical studies, prior studies had always been attributed to psychological terms [4-7]. It is believed that Malaysians surfing the Internet for long hours are not aware of the consequences of surfing for long hours and are addicted to the Internet unknowingly? What causes them to surf for long hours and what activities do they engage in while Online, lead to the questions that have motivated us to do this study on the usage of Internet among Malaysian youth. We have devised a set of questions accordingly to diagnose the pattern of online behavior among the youth. An on-line survey on Internet
