General Aspects of Applying Generative AI in Higher Education Mohamed Lahby, Yassine Maleh, Antonio Bucchiarone, Satu Elisa Schaeffer, 2024-09-27 This book explores the transformative impact of generative artificial intelligence GenAI on teaching and learning examining how recent advancements in GenAI are revolutionizing educational practices across disciplines The book is organized into three parts an overview of GenAI in education its application in diverse educational contexts and future perspectives on how educators and GenAI can interface The first part addresses the pressing concerns within the educational landscape both the bridges GenAI allows us to build and the remaining as well as the emerging gaps The middle part explores specific academic disciplines such as history sports medicine mathematics engineering and the humanities dissecting the influence of GenAI on each The final part looks ahead discussing the ethical implications the evolving role of prompting and innovative frameworks for personalized learning By presenting a balanced view of the opportunities that are now within reach through GenAI and the challenges such leaps pose to the way we learn and teach this book allows interested educators to learn from the early adopting contributors to fruitfully and responsibly integrate such technologies into their pedagogical practices It serves as a resource for anyone interested in the future of educational practices and research of education offering insights that can spark further exploration and discussion within the academic community and educational policy makers

Symbolic Interaction and AI Shing-Ling S. Chen, 2025-12-01 Authors explore the implications of the emergent interaction between humans and AI technologies They provide a fine grain view of the social forms associated with the use of AI technologies using symbolic interactionist concepts such as identity reflexivity the self the generalized other time place and more as pivots of analysis

Optimal Physical Activity across the Lifespan for People of All Abilities Ronald F. Zernicke, David Arthur Hart, Humans evolved to be mobile within the boundary conditions of Earth and many biological and physiologic systems depend on mechanical loading to maintain integrity during growth and maturation during skeletal maturity and during the aging process These systems subscribe to the use it or lose it principle and thus require continual use to maintain integrity Given that premise considerable basic and clinical research efforts have been directed at optimizing the effectiveness and positive impact of exercise on sports performance and the well being of those with intact systems However those with disabilities or compromised abilities also benefit from exercise protocols and there exists a need to focus attention on these populations as well Given the myriad of biological and physiological systems that benefit from exercise and mechanical loading there is a need for all humans of varying abilities to not only maintain the integrity of their health but to attempt to optimize it recognizing that optimizing each person's health across the stages of the life cycle may require different exercise protocols dependent on stage of life sex genetics and other individualized variables For those with physical disabilities embracing and maintaining such exercise protocols may be challenging but expanded research translation of findings and integration of the outcomes into everyday life to enhance the health and well being of
