future challenges facing Sudan but also incorporates the largest part of the agreements and accords signed by the belligerent parties for the last few decades in the same text BOOK JACKET The Oil Paradox C. I. Obi, 2004 The dominant trend in environmental studies has assumed that people ruin the natural environment The contributors to Greening the Great Red Island Madagascar in Nature and Culture challenge this assumption not for its elements of obvious truthfulness but its oversimplification Diverse social environmental perspectives on Madagascar demonstrate that Madagascar's rural people have dynamic historical and complex relationships with their environments Conservation organisations working to preserve Madagascar's biological megadiversity may achieve negative results if they start with the wrong assumptions Combining potent theoretical and methodological analysis with detailed case studies from across the island of Madagascar this collection will appeal to those doing research and teaching in African studies anthropology development environmental studies geography history political science and zoology Regional Integration for Food Security in Southern Africa

Siphamandla Zondi, 2004 The food crisis in Southern Africa is compounded by socio economic health and environmental problems There is a diminishing income generating labour supply and a low food production rate in areas which may be beset by drought famine HIV AIDS or conflict That agriculture is a viable sector for economic growth is posited on the fact that this sector provides a livelihood for some 70% of the region's population Nevertheless the continent has failed to produce enough food for consumption The acceleration of the process of globalisation has exacerbated the difficult and imbalanced agricultural environment in which poor countries must operate which so this volume maintains can only be addressed through integrated approaches at a regional level Furthermore the failure of so many international food relief programmes indicates that an approach harnessed by the regional bodies such as Nepad and SADC may be the most effective strategy to ensure the prospect of food security Sight and Sound, 2001 Political Reforms in the Arab World Faten Aggad, 2006 The author presents this case study within the broader context of the democratisation cause in the Arab and Muslim worlds and provides a balanced assessment of Egypt's progress in this regard to date Aggad makes use of qualitative analysis and a variety of informed direct sources based on her extensive fieldwork research in the country The paper is systematically organised and comprehensive in its coverage of indicators and measurement instruments of good governance in Egypt following the implementation of reforms such as the Amendment of Article 76 in the Egyptian Constitution

Somalia Peace Process Korwa Gombe Adar, John Gay Yoh, 2006 Africa and Global Civil Aviation Safety and Security in Light of September 11 Norman Mlambo, 2006 The Nature of the Conflict in Sudan Donovan Du Plooy, 2005

Clothing and Footwear in African Industrialisation Dorothy McCormick, Christian Myles Rogerson, 2004 There is a broad consensus amongst development specialist that in order to grow and develop African countries need to industrialise and at a greater rate than they are doing at present In searching for the reasons for the disappointing industrial progress so far observers have tended to take a broad look at the industrial sector as a whole The work reported in this volume takes a different approach It sets out from the premise that two industries clothing and footwear offer excellent starter opportunities for baseline industrial growth Garments and footwear are low tech industries in so far that use stable well diffused technology They generate only low level research and development needs require only basic skills and operate on low economies of scale whilst having the capacity to absorb large numbers of semi skilled workers and make extensive use of local resources Additionally they offer considerable export potential This collection of papers focuses on the changing role and potential of the clothing and footwear sectors in industrialisation in Africa The examples elucidated are the clothing and footwear sectors in Ethiopia Kenya South Africa and Tanzania Taken together these four countries provide a representative cross sector of African countries and present a range of different issues relating to the continent s clothing and footwear economy More generally the volume seeks to contribute to a greater appreciation of the impacts of globalisation on industrial development trajectories
