third of agricultural land With proper support we argue they could feed the entire world using sustainable and socially responsible approaches to eradicate world hunger

Religious Responses to Earthquake and Volcanic Eruption Disasters

David Chester, Angus Duncan, John Duncan, 2024-07-26 This book argues that although secular and religious perspectives on disasters have often conflicted today there are grounds for believing that the world's major faiths have much to contribute to the processes of post disaster recovery and future disaster risk reduction DRR It seeks to demonstrate how contemporary dialogues between theologians disaster scholars and policymakers are defining new ways of working together These explore how the resources of religious communities e.g. buildings human resources and finance may be used to foster successful policies of DRR particularly in the aftermath of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions Musing on the relationships between religion and disasters has occurred for millennia and has affected many societies worldwide In societies where the world's major religions Buddhism Christianity Hinduism Islam Judaism and Shinto have been and remain dominant attempting to find supernatural explanations for disasters has occurred throughout history and there have been many theologies seeking to explain why people suffer losses It is argued that developments both within these traditions of faith and in how disasters are understood by the hazard research community of researchers and planners have allowed a new modus vivendi to emerge which emphasises both a recognition of religious worldviews by academic writers and disaster planners on the one hand and a desire by people of faith and their leaders to be more fully committed to the goals of DRR The book will appeal to those who are interested in the interface between disasters and theology across the principal religions of the world This includes researchers and students in geology geography theology and religious studies It will also be useful for specialist academic
