

The Rise of Nationalism In Europe

The French Revolution and the Idea of Nation

During 19th century, nationalism emerged as a force which led the emergence of the nation-state in place of the multinational dynastic empires of Europe. The French Revolution (1789) paved the way for modern nation-state. French Revolution questioned the old monarchical order and encouraged the development of a popular nationalism.

To emphasise the nation as a united community the French Revolution introduced new ideas like la patrie (the fatherland) and le citoyen (the citizen) and a new French flag amongst the French people. It introduced a centralised administrative system with uniform law for all citizens. Regional dialects were discouraged and French as spoken and written in Paris was accepted as a common language of the country.

Napoleonic Code

Napoleon destroyed democracy in France, but he incorporated revolutionary principle by introducing the Civil Code of 1804, which came to be known as the Napoleonic code. The code removed all privileges based on birth, established equality before the law and secured the right to property, simplified, administrative divisions, abolished the feudal system and freed peasants from serfdom and manorial dues. Guild system was removed and transport and communication system improved.

There was establishment of universal laws, standardised weights and measures and common national currency which benefitted each and every section of the society.
