

2-1: frequency distributions for organizing and summarizing data.

2-2 Histograms

2-3 graphs that enlighten and graphs that deceive (one-half full)

2-4 scatterplots, correlation, and regression

- cumulative frequency distribution:
  - o the frequency for each class is the sum of the frequencies for that class and all previous classes.
- critical thinking: using frequency distributions to understand data:
  - o in statistics we are often interested in determining whether that data have a normal distribution.
    - the frequencies start low, then increase to one or two high frequencies, and then decrease to a low frequency.
    - the distribution is approximately symmetric, frequencies preceding the maximum frequency should be roughly a mirror image of those that follow the maximum frequency.
- Gaps:
  - o the presence of gaps can show that the data are from two or more different populations.
  - o however, the converse is not true, because data from different populations do not necessarily result in gaps.

Example: Exploring Data: What Does a Gap Tell Us? (p. 41)

The table shown is a frequency distribution of the weights (pounds) of randomly selected persons.

Weight (pounds) of Person	Frequency
120-124	20
125-129	40
130-134	10
135-139	10
140-144	10
145-149	10
150-154	20
155-159	10

Example: Exploring Data: What Does a Gap Tell Us? (p. 41)

- Examination of the frequencies reveals a large gap between the lightest persons and the heaviest persons.
- This suggests that we have two different populations: (Persons made before 1980 are 55% heavier and 5% shorter.) (Persons made after 1980 are 2.5% heavier and 57.5% shorter.)
- Which explains the large gap between the lightest persons and the heaviest persons in the table.
