

1. With the opening paragraph, Golding sets the tone for the coming chapter. List a few details from the first paragraph that set this tone and the mood that is created by Golding's descriptions.

2. Piggy and Ralph go to the beach with the superficial intent of checking on the signal, but when they arrive, they suspect meat from Jack and eat it greedily. In the following confrontation between Jack and Ralph, Ralph continues to declare himself the chief. How has Jack shedded authority away from Ralph, and how is Ralph undermined his own authority?

3. How has Golding used weather details to build the suspense and mood during the feasting and the killing of Simon? Use specific details from the chapter to discuss this.

4. Simon is the only boy brave enough to diminish the power of the beast by confronting it. When he discovers that the beast is a dead soldier trapped by a parachute, he loosens the strings of the chute. Despite his good intention of going to the boys to enlighten the boys and save them from their fears, he ends up being murdered by them in one of their savage dances. In this scene, how does Simon continue to be the Christ figure that Golding creates him to be?
