Stepping on the Stones Joanna Johnson, 2018-01-10 Since the first publication of this book in 2010 my staff and I have learned and grown so much in the field of addiction This republication is my way of sharing the new knowledge that my staff and I have acquired Over the years we have come to rely on and trust in the assessment process I feel this is the one of most important factors in your recovery During an assessment the treatment provider will work to learn not only what you need help with but also who you are and why drug and alcohol addiction became a destructive element in your life Any conditions that can perpetuate drug and alcohol abuse such as mental illness health problems family history abuse history spiritual affiliations etc will be discovered and used to create a personalized treatment plan which is the second most important factor in a successful treatment program As my manual will teach you drug and alcohol addiction is a disease There are multiple potential counterparts to the disease that are discussed during an assessment to determine the appropriate level of care For example mental health issues that may require medication religious affiliations genetic predispositions etc Considering these special factors during each case means that I can recommend precisely the level of care each client needs based on an all inclusive understanding of their addiction In conclusion an assessment is an irreplaceable tool and the first step towards recovery My staff and I are a very tight team and have been so for at least 15 years When 4 people work as such a tight unit it has allowed us to cover many different variates of addiction and bring that to this workbook I feel it is also important to note that my practice has never received a dime of funding from the government but have become a premier expert in the field of addiction but have achieved feats such as being named Professional of the Year for the Northwest Region as part of the Florida Drug and Alcohol Addiction Abuse Association s 2011 Award for Excellence Now finally let me explain why I have republished this book Over the years we have noticed a lot of agencies do not offer or work with relapse prevention This was a mistake even my practice made in the first publications of this book This new publication is meant to rectify that error The field of addiction is always a learning process and I want to grow with you I have seen how relapse prevention helps clients with slips and relapse as well as understanding the difference As a team my practice has decided that this needs to be more prominent and therefore have transformed our final stone Stone 7 in to just that RELAPSE PREVENTION I believe this is critical to helping clients remain clean and sober Stepping on the Stones Joanna Johnson, MSW, CAC, MAC, CFC, 2019-03-13 Since the first publication of this book in 2010 my staff and I have learned and grown so much in the field of addiction This republication is my way of sharing the new knowledge that my staff and I have acquired Over the years we have come to rely on and trust in the assessment process As a company we have completed over 25 000 assessments in the last 25 years I feel this is one of the most important factors in recovery During an assessment the treatment provider will work to learn not only what you need help with but also who you are and why drug and alcohol addiction became a destructive element in your life Any conditions that can perpetuate drug and alcohol abuse such as mental illness health problems family history abuse history spiritual affiliations etc will be discovered and used to create a personalized treatment plan which is the second most important factor in a successful treatment program As my manual will teach you drug and alcohol addictions are a disease There are multiple potential counterparts to the disease that are discussed during an assessment to determine the appropriate level of care For example mental health issues that may require medication religious affiliations genetic predispositions etc Considering these special factors during each case means that I can recommend precisely the level of care each client needs to be based on an all inclusive understanding of their addiction In conclusion an assessment is an irreplaceable tool and the first step towards recovery My staff and I are a very tight team and have been so for at least 25 years When a small group of people work as such a tight unit it allows us to cover many different variates of addiction and bring that experience to this workbook I feel it is also important to note that my practice has achieved feats such as being named Professional of the Year for the Northwest Region as part of the Florida Drug and Alcohol Addiction Abuse Association s 2011 Award for Excellence Now finally let me explain why I have republished this book Over the years we have noticed a lot of agencies do not offer or work with relapse prevention This was a mistake even my practice made in the first publications of this book This new publication is meant to rectify that error The field of addiction is always a learning process and I want to grow with you I have seen how relapse prevention helps clients with slips and relapse as well as understanding the difference As a team my practice has decided that this needs to be more prominent and therefore have transformed our final stone Stone 7 into just that RELAPSE PREVENTION I believe this is critical to helping clients remain clean and sober Since being published in 2010 this workbook has been approved as an evidence based program and accepted for use by the Florida Department of Corrections Department of Children and Families independent treatment centers and is a favorite among our private clientele
