

International Human Resource Management is a cross-college of a syllabus that has developed strongly for itself – helping to shape what it is today. The author team (based in Australia, the UK and Europe) has International Human Resource Management (IHRM) courses with developments in academic curriculum, making this a key resource for international and graduate IHRM students, as well as the business students studying a better business understanding of IHRM.

The new edition is updated to reflect the rise of the external, the growing technology and digitalisation, the environmental global economy, new market and global responsibilities, and a focus on entrepreneurship.

FROM THE 19TH EDITION

"What a delight to read the 19th edition of International Human Resource Management by Dunning, Festing and Englebert. These three have led IHRM in the 20th century, but also now include smaller and faster moving firms. This book defines and defines differences and identifies how and where these differences are relevant. Throughout the book are highly available 'Action Cases', current research and practical insights, particularly on implications for entry of modes of international operations, cross-border alliances, mergers and acquisitions and international joint ventures. I highly recommend this to students, students and all practitioners who have international interests."

Professor Mary Ann Bell, University of Southern California, USA; Former Executive of International Business Research, Former Executive of International Management and Strategy, Former Executive of International Management, University of Southern California, USA

"In the complexity of our business increasingly global, borderless and interconnected, more organizations are multinational and most engage a workforce that spans cultures, cultures and regions. In the 19th edition of International Human Resource Management, Dunning, Festing and Englebert offer an evidence-based and practical framework to guide current and future organizational leaders. With its focus on theory, the book is widely applicable in research, theory and practical experience."

Dr. John W. Boudreau, Professor and Research Director, University of Southern California, Professor John Boudreau, Southern California University, USA

"The 19th edition of International Human Resource Management represents a valuable update of our knowledge of the field to all its global dimensions. The co-authors clearly 'know their stuff' in the IHRM arena. They will add confidence to managers, students and practitioners around the world for many years to come. The text is well designed and readable, thereby bringing us new insights and understanding."

Professor Deborah Thomas, School of Management and Leadership, Anglia Ruskin University, UK

"This outstanding book continues to set the standard in the field of international human resource management. Its international author team has a unique gift of combining what we know from theory and research with current practices and issues to provide the perfect opportunity for students to engage with key problems and challenges and apply what they have learned. In addition to evidence and systems throughout, the 19th edition with a focus on global issues management, internationalizing the world and modern case the end a new extensive section on global issues and management excellence in the 20th."

Professor Tony Doherty, School of Management, University of Southern California, USA; Former Executive of International Business Research, Former Executive of International Management and Strategy, Former Executive of International Management, University of Southern California, USA
