divided by the total number of minutes of employee time available and how much time it takes to carry out one unit of each kind of activity as estimated or observed by the manager Rather than endlessly updating and maintaining ABC data this book with allow managers to spend their time addressing the deficiencies the model reveals inefficient processes unprofitable products and customers and excess capacity Kaplan and Anderson lead the discussion of Time Driven ABC in the first seven chapters followed by individual cases studies of actual implementations by Acorn consultants in diverse settings

Activity Based Costing Andreas Leitner,2005-05-09 Research Paper undergraduate from the year 2004 in the subject Business economics Accounting and Taxes grade 2 Glynd r University Wrexham known as NEWI Business school language English abstract During the last decades there was a change in organisations from managing vertical to managing horizontal The organisations started to become process orientated instead of function orientated and new management styles like total quality management just in time benchmarking or business process reengineering appeared Which lead into an increase of overheads Drury 2004a The most important cost factors changed from direct costs like labour costs or materials into indirect costs like set up costs or administration costs Therefore the traditional costing systems became more or less useless because they presented poor cost information which leads into decision errors Therefore the ABC system of cost calculation seems to be a solution The most important difference between traditional systems and the ABC system is the breakdown of overheads In traditional costing systems they are divided into cost centres and accumulated products by using direct cost drivers In the ABC system they will be assigned to activities which creates a greater number of cost centres with different cost drivers They will be accumulated to products in the percentage of usage of an activity In this paper the ABC system of cost calcualton is discussed and how it can be inplemented successfully within an organisation Attention is also trwon to the most important failure in implementation of an ABC approach which should be avoided To establish an ABC approach within an organisation more than just a new calculation system is needed An ABC approach has to be implemented in the management system ABM and in the budgetting process ABB All in all Activity based costing is much more than juast a costing tool Successfully implemented it will help to understand costs better an make the right decisions
