

The Wanderer

translated by Charles W. Kennedy

Oft to the wanderer, weary of exile,
Cometh God's pity, compassionate love,
Though woefully toiling on wintry seas
With churning oar in the icy wave,
5 Homeless and helpless he fled from fate.
Thus saith the wanderer mindful of misery,
Grievous disasters, and death of kin:

"Oft when the day broke, oft at the dawning,
Lonely and wretched I wailed my woe
10 No man is living, no comrade left,
To whom I dare fully unlock my heart.
I have learned truly the mark of a man
Is keeping his counsel and locking his lips,
Let him think what he will! For, woe of heart
15 Withstandeth not fate; a failing spirit
Earneth no help. Men eager for honor Bury their sorrow deep in the breast.

"So have I also, often in wretchedness
Fettered my feelings, far from my kin,
20 Homeless and hapless,* since days of old,
When the dark earth covered my dear lord's face,
And I sailed away with sorrowful heart,
Over wintry seas, seeking a gold-lord,
If far or near lived one to befriend me
25 With gift in the mead-hall and comfort for grief.

"Who bears it, knows what a bitter companion,
Shoulder to shoulder, sorrow can be,
When friends are no more. His fortune is exile,
Not gifts of fine gold; a heart that is frozen, 30 Earth's winsomeness dead. And he dreams of the hall men,
The dealing of treasure, the days of his youth,
When his lord bade welcome to wassail* and feast.
But gone is that gladness, and never again
Shall come the loved counsel of comrade and king.

"Even in slumber his sorrow assaileth,
And, dreaming he claspeth his dear lord again,
Head on knee, hand on knee, loyally laying,
Pledging his liege* as in days long past,
35 Then from his slumber he starts lonely-hearted,
Beholding gray stretches of tossing sea,
Seabirds bathing, with wings outspread,
While hailstorms darken, and driving snow,
Bitterer then is the bane of his wretchedness,
40 The longing for loved one: his grief is renewed.
45 The forms of his kinsmen take shape in the silence;

*hapless: unlucky

*wassail: a toast in drinking to someone's health or a celebration at which such toasts are made

*liege: lord or sovereign
