Stakeholder Theory Maria Bonnafous-Boucher, Jacob Dahl Rendtorff, 2016-11-08 This book provides an academic introduction to and presentation and defence of stakeholder theory as a model for the strategic management of businesses and corporations as well as of public organizations and institutions The concept of the stakeholder is generally applied to parties that affect or are affected by the activities of private or public organizations Distinct from shareholders stakeholders are those individuals entities or communities that have a connection with the activities of a corporation a firm or an organization The notion of the stakeholder is intimately linked to a conception of the business firm as an entity founded on negotiated governance in which the maximization of value for the shareholder is not the ultimate criterion In this model issues and interests that are not directly associated with shareholders and investors but which go beyond capital to encompass the concerns of civil society are considered to be of central importance This book provides a broad overview of stakeholder theory presenting it as an ethical approach to strategic management that is both pragmatic and applicable to developing democratic practices within corporations while at the same time suggesting ways in which elements of a social contract can be elaborated within the context of globalization

Stakeholder Management in Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises Jens Hillebrand, 2010-05 Master's Thesis from the year 2009 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 17 20 1 3 Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management course International Master in Management Science language English abstract This study derives a model of stakeholder management in small and medium sized enterprises which describes the process from the owner managers personal ethics to the firm's eventual engagement with its stakeholders Following a thorough review of literature published on stakeholder theory ethical behaviour in organizations and small and medium sized companies five hypotheses are put forward on which the model is based The results of three case studies on owner managed micro enterprises from the Belgian beer producing industry are used to test the validity of the model and the hypotheses The results of the case studies on Belgian micro breweries support the major part of the proposed SME stakeholder management model and the hypotheses it is based on The perception of legitimate stakeholders is based on the personal ethics of the owner manager These are determined by the owner manager's preference for a certain normative core and his stage of cognitive moral development Perceived stakeholders will possess power over the company and or have a legitimate moral or legal claim on the firm Individual and situational moderators exist which can influence the transition from the owner manager's personal ethic to his perception of important stakeholders Relevant individual factors are the owner manager's type and length of education and employment family background culture and nationality as well as his locus of control Situational influences found to be important are the views of relevant peers psychological sanctions and rewards moral intensity and moral framing The company's actual stakeholder management depends on whom the owner manager perceives to be legitimate stakeholders It may be interesting to see how this model is applied in practice

Stakeholder Thinking in Marketing Michael Jay Polonsky, 2005 Stakeholder thinking in marketing Stakeholder thinking is becoming a core part of marketing as well as other business-related disciplines A search of the business source primer database found that prior to 1995 there are 58 articles using the term stakeholder in their title and 27 academic marketing related articles with stakeholder as a key term The interest in stakeholder theory has however grown rapidly between January 2000 and November 2004 there were 228 articles using stakeholder theory in the title and 140 academic marketing related journal articles that examined stakeholder issues In fact the American Marketing Association's AMA 2004 new definition of marketing expressly incorporates our responsibility to consider how marketing activities impact stakeholders Marketing is an organizational function and a set of processes for creating communicating and delivering value to customers and for managing customer relationships in ways that benefit the organization and its stakeholders Thus the AMA has recognised the core role of stakeholder thinking While there is an increased interest in stakeholder thinking in marketing an examination of the literature would seem to suggest that there is no unified view of how stakeholder thinking can be or should be integrated into theory or practice. Many of the stakeholder works in marketing and in other disciplines still focus on the social and ethical impacts of stakeholders. This may have been where much of stakeholder thinking initially gained its prominence but it is a broader strategic tool that can benefit a range of areas and was in fact the focus of Freeman's 1984 original work in the area. This is not to suggest that the general strategic implications of stakeholder thinking are not being considered as an increasingly number of works are looking at stakeholder implications in regards to exchange networks, relationship marketing and other issues related to strategy development. The papers in this special issue have considered a range of varying perspectives including corporate social responsibility, the impact of interacting with stakeholders, relationship issues and broader discussions of stakeholder theory as a strategic tool. These papers have taken a diverse range of perspectives including conceptual works, case studies, qualitative approaches and various empirical approaches to examining the issues of interest within various pieces. The scope of papers included in the special as well as those not included identifies the breadth of relevance stakeholder thinking has for the application of all aspects of marketing theory and practice. The question of how stakeholders and stakeholder theory can be considered in organisational activities and marketing theory is an issue that most certainly seems to warrant further consideration. The works in this special issue have advanced this debate and identified some directions that could be considered. Stakeholder thinking is however not necessarily a paradigm shift in marketing thinking although some might believe it is but rather it broadens existing concepts such as relationship marketing, network theory, organisational social responsibility and other areas. Hopefully the papers presented in this special issue will encourage others to consider the inclusion of stakeholders into broader areas of marketing. Any special issue editor has to thank a range of people for assistance with developing the special issue. I would like to thank Audrey Gilmore and David Carson, editors of EJM, for allowing the special issue to be developed. Their input through the process has been invaluable. I would also like to thank the many authors of unsuccessful papers for submitting their work. It was of course impossible to include all papers in the special issue but the breadth of coverage in regards to topics and geographic areas would seem to demonstrate the growing interest in stakeholder thinking within marketing. Lastly, it is imperative that I thank the reviewers without their assistance the special issue would not have been possible. The following people reviewed papers for the special issue: Anupam Jaju, Gorge Mason, University of Western Australia; Bill Kilbourn, Clemson University; Bob Heiser, New Mexico State University; Catherine Elder, eabode, visi.net; Cathy L. Hartman, Utah State University; David Waller, University of Technology Sydney; David Stewart, Monash University; Devashish Pujari, McMaster University; Dr Russell Casey, Clayton State University; Duane Windsor, Rice University; Edwin R. Stafford, Utah State University; Felix Mavondo, Monsah University; Frank de Bakker, University of Amsterdam; Hamish Ratten, University of Queensland; J. Mahon, University of Maine; John Stanton, University of Western Sydney; Kamal Ghose, University of South Australia; Kelly Strong, Iowa State University.
