Competing For The Future By Gary Hamel C K Prahalad:

Competing for the Future Gary Hamel, C. K. Prahalad, 1996-03-21 New competitive realities have ruptured industry boundaries overthrown much of standard management practice and rendered conventional models of strategy and growth obsolete In their stead have come the powerful ideas and methodologies of Gary Hamel and C K Prahalad whose much revered thinking has already engendered a new language of strategy In this book they develop a coherent model for how today s executives can identify and accomplish no less than heroic goals in tomorrow s marketplace Their masterful blueprint addresses how executives can ease the tension between competing today and clearing a path toward leadership in the future

Seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject Business economics. Offline Marketing and Online Marketing, grade none. University of Leicester, language English, abstract. I Introduction. Competing for the future. Today organizations have to find answers to questions that might be asked in near future by both customers and competitors. In his book On Marketing by Kotler, written in 1999, the author is drawing a dramatic picture of the future for the competitive situation in 2005. Companies are unable to sustain competitive advantages outside of patents. Although his scenario maybe came not true, the point is interesting. How do companies find the right way to respond to new developments, e-business, globalization, etc. Strategy is about the long term development. Organizations need to collect information of the market, they have to define strategies, and difficult enough they need to implement the strategies. In order to remain a market leader, Hamel and Prahalad advise their reader in an article from 1994 to pause for a moment and ask questions like: Who are the customers today and who will be the customers in the future? Who are presently our competitors and who will compete with us in the future? What is our competitive advantage today and what will make us a leader in the future? Models like Ansoff's matrix or Porter's 5 Forces make today's situation visible and allow to formulate strategic options. The task is to find and implement strategic options that allow the best allocation of resources in the future. MASTERING STRATEGY Jeffrey Rigsby, Guy Greco, 2003-01-08. Up to the minute examples of market leading companies and strategists in action. Strategy that is both creative and pragmatic is today's number one competitive edge. It has been the driving force behind the success of firms such as McDonald's and Microsoft, and executives like Sam Walton and Jack Welch. Mastering Strategy examines best practices and examples from these and other companies, CEOs, and academics, and details how executives can benchmark them to overcome new questions and problems in today's harder, faster, smarter world. From achieving market leadership to managing change, today's business leaders must not only stay atop the latest trends but also understand and improve the core issues that drive their organizations By distilling scores of resources into one powerful volume authors Jeffrey Rigsby and Guy Greco have produced a guidebook for creating new and exciting corporate strategy Examples include Strategies of corporations such as Nike and Procter Gamble Insights of CEOs from Bill Hewlett to Ray Kroc Wisdom of thought leaders from Warren Bennis to Robert Kaplan

Management John M. Ivancevich, Peter Lorenzi, Steven J. Skinner, 1997 Including coverage of topics such as diversity cycle time creativity learning organizations and the Internet this work on quality and competitiveness contains exercises and case studies
