Brad Leithauser, 1980      Marianne Moore Bernard F. Engel, 1964 This first full length book on Marianne Moore and her poetry traces her development from early assertions of the values of courageous individualism as exemplified in animals and objects It finds that she moved to declarations of a need for man to recognize as if in existence and to the decision that one should armor himself not merely for protection from the world but also for usefulness within it It shows that in her latest period she has come to assert a unity of spirit and appearance to hope for a vision and to meditate on a need for redemption and resurrection Publisher      Marianne Moore Elizabeth Phillips, 1982 Discusses the life and art of the poetess Marianne Moore Includes a chronology      Complete Poems of Marianne Moore George F. Pearson, 19??      The Selected Letters of Marianne Moore Marianne Moore, 1997 In her introduction Bonnie Costello writes On July 9 1959 T S Eliot wrote to Marianne Moore One of the books which obviously must in the fullness of time be published will be the Letters of Marianne Moore We are pleased to fulfill his prediction Marianne Moore's correspondence makes up the largest and most broadly significant collection of any modern poet It documents the first two thirds of this century reflecting shifts from Victorian to modernist culture the experience of the two world wars the Depression and postwar prosperity and the changing face of the arts in America and Europe Moore wrote letters daily for most of her life long intense letters to friends and family shorter but always distinctive letters to an ever widening circle of acquaintances and fans At the height of her celebrity she would occasionally write as many as fifty letters a day Both Moore and her correspondents appreciated the value of their exchange so that an extraordinary number of letters approximately thirty thousand have been preserved It is Moore's poetry that draws us to her letters of course But in making this selection we have tried to present the life and mind of a woman whose interests extended to all the arts to religion politics and psychology to fashion sports and the domestic arts moving freely between high culture and popular culture and whose family and friendships remained as important as her professional life Moore's correspondence is unique in the extent of its extraliterary interests and passionate engagement with the world at large From her college adventures her travels and the flurry of her artistic and social activities there seems to have been no lull What has struck us most in reading through Moore's letters is the vitality and fullness of the long life they record      The Complete Prose of Marianne Moore Marianne Moore, 1987 This volume includes Marianne Moore's regular reviews critical essays on Stevens Williams Pound and others and comments on painting fashion and the Holland Tunnel      Representing Modernist Texts George Bornstein, 1991 Literary scholars explore the significant yet largely ignored field of textual and editorial scholarship in the work of modern authors
