Contemporary Issues in Special Education Ashlea Rineer-Hershey,Toni Mild,2019-04-18 Featuring chapters written by a diverse collection of educators within the discipline Contemporary Issues in Special Education presents readers with insight regarding topics within the field of special education that are often deemed controversial in nature. The text encourages future educators to think critically regarding various challenges and opportunities they are likely to encounter during their educational careers. Over the course of nine distinct sections, students are exposed to chapters that discuss sensory friendly classrooms, positive behavior intervention and support, dangerous behaviors, and crisis management. It also covers the least restrictive environment, the relationship between special education and socioeconomic status, and the connection between English language learners and special education. Readers learn about service and support animals in the school setting, assistive technology, transition services, mental health screenings in schools, disciplinary procedures for special education students, advice for engaging family members in an inclusive school community, and more. Designed to help future educators prepare to serve as highly effective and competent teachers, Contemporary Issues in Special Education is ideal for graduate level courses and programs in special education instruction.

Ashlea L. Rineer-Hershey is an associate professor in the Special Education Department at Slippery Rock University where she coordinates the department's doctoral program and teaches courses at the undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral levels. She has a bachelor's degree in elementary and special education from Millersville University, a master's degree in special education from Eastern Mennonite University, and a Ph.D. from Robert Morris University in instructional management and leadership in education. Ashlea has also worked as a special education teacher and an educational consultant, conducting trainings for teachers, administrators, and paraprofessionals on topics like inclusive practices, co-teaching, behavior, autism, and other topics throughout public schools in western Pennsylvania.

Toni Mild is an assistant professor in the Special Education Department at Slippery Rock University. She earned her Ed.D. with specialization in educational leadership and management from Capella University. Dr. Mild is a former middle school Title 1 math teacher, emotional support teacher, learning support teacher, and special education supervisor.

Current Issues and Trends in Special Education Festus E. Obiakor, Jeffrey P. Bakken, Anthony F. Rotatori, 2010-02-05. The field of special education constantly changes as a result of legislation, instructional formats, and the research investigations. Addressing the issues and trends in special education, this title covers research, technology, and teacher preparation.

Rethinking Professional Issues in Special Education James L. Paul, Carolyn D. Lavelly, Ann Cranston-Gingras, Ella L. Taylor, 2002-07-30. Special educators are facing new challenges at the beginning of the 21st century as public education is being reformed by a vision focusing on measurable student outcomes. The future course of the field will be shaped by the policy and programmatic responses to several issues, including demographic changes in student populations, a lack of certified special education teachers, criticism in the public media for the rising costs of services, and debates about the preferred philosophy of service delivery for students with disabilities. Additional chapters discuss university-school collaboration, charter schools, disability studies, school violence, disproportionality in placement, male African American teachers, and ethics. This book has been written out of a context of research and program development.
