Distributed Hydrologic Modeling Using GIS Baxter E. Vieux,2016-08-19 This book presents a unified approach for modeling hydrologic processes distributed in space and time using geographic information systems GIS This Third Edition focuses on the principles of implementing a distributed model using geospatial data to simulate hydrologic processes in urban rural and peri urban watersheds The author describes fully distributed representations of hydrologic processes where physics is the basis for modeling and geospatial data forms the cornerstone of parameter and process representation A physics based approach involves conservation laws that govern the movement of water ranging from precipitation over a river basin to flow in a river Global geospatial data have become readily available in GIS format and a modeling approach that can utilize this data for hydrology offers numerous possibilities GIS data formats spatial interpolation and resolution have important effects on the hydrologic simulation of the major hydrologic components of a watershed and the book provides examples illustrating how to represent a watershed with spatially distributed data along with the many pitfalls inherent in such an undertaking Since the First and Second Editions software development and applications have created a richer set of examples and a deeper understanding of how to perform distributed hydrologic analysis and prediction This Third Edition describes the development of geospatial data for use in Vflo physics based distributed modeling Applied Modeling in Catchment Hydrology Vijay P. Singh,1982 The Edwards Aquifer John M. Sharp Jr.,Ronald T. Green,Geary M. Schindel,2019-11-04 One of the world s great karstic aquifer systems the Edwards aquifer system supplies water for more than 2 million people and for agricultural municipal industrial and recreational uses This volume reviews the current state of knowledge current and emerging challenges to wise use of the aquifer system and some technologies that must be adopted to address these challenges Vegetation-soil-hydrology Interactions and Ecohydrological Processes Jing Liu,Jing Zhang ,Xudong Huang,2025-10-21 An ecohydrological ecosystem contains numerous waters soil and vegetation precipitation moves through the canopy layers washes through the vegetation infiltrates the soil organic horizon and percolates downward through the deeper mineral soil to the groundwater At multi scales vegetation management i e changing land use types and patterns can alter hydrological cycles and thereby impact the provisioning of ecosystem services For example vegetation management practices can impact ecosystem fluxes such as runoff evapotranspiration soil storage and nutrients Recent developments in distributed modeling of ecohydrological processes have enabled us to better understand how vegetation management practices change in relation to hydrological and geochemical cycles Overall understanding the interactions between the ecohydrological ecosystem and hydrological and geochemical processes is crucial for supporting decision making in eco construction and the efficient use of water resources Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1991-07
