Problems of Science Federigo Enriques,Katharine Head Royce,1914 Purchase of this book includes free trial access to www million books com where you can read more than a million books for free This is an OCR edition with typos Excerpt from book I INTRODUCTION 1 THE SPECIAL PROBLEMS AND GENERAL IDEAS OF SCIENCE A DOUBLE fatality hangs over one who has consecrated his days to science If he would contribute to the advancement of science he must prepare himself first of all by a patient study of the thousands of details which constitute its technique he must learn the results obtained by numberless laborers whose researches tend toward the same aim He must master their conceptions and subject them to a new criticism This work so engrosses the attention of the investigator that he has little time left for casting a glance over the branches of science which are developing beside him Yet this necessity also weighs upon his soul If on the one hand he ought to study special problems on the other he cannot exempt himself from considering the ends set before special research by rising to a general outlook which shall command the view of a broader scientific basis This double necessity causes a conflict of tendencies and this conflict in our system of production results in a loss of time and of work from which the intellectual world suffers Most investigators if they are not rightly directed shut themselves up in a narrow circle and fall into a blind empiricism Others lose themselves in the region of confused generalities while a few finer spirits find the way for themselves and often must win again by fresh efforts that which they should have a right to expect as the outcome of the completed work of their companions in labor But the age of heroes that of Descartes or Leibniz whose genius opened all the doors of science seems closed forever The conquests of the past weigh upon the present and upon the future And if it is permissible to hope that a happier use of our intellectual powe
