

DAVID HOCKNEY: A Big Splash

By Jennifer Dowd

Publication: FabMag, Spring 2003

Considered a founder of the British Pop Art movement of the 1960s, David Hockney remains one of the most prominent and prolific artists of our time. In this brief retrospective of his life and work, FabMag presents a closer look at the artist, his famed pool paintings and his love of life.

Portrait of an Artist

At age eleven, sitting at a school desk in Yorkshire, England, David Hockney probably didn't know that one day he'd be long settled in the Hollywood Hills of Southern California. That his paintings would be collected by the Tate Gallery and the Centres Georges Pompidou. That his set designs would animate the stages of New York's Metropolitan Opera House and the Royal Opera in London. That his break-up with a lover would be documented on film for the eyes of the world. That he'd have two Daschunds named Stanley and Boodgie and would illustrate and write a book about them. Or that in the year 2002 David Hockney's Dog Days would be among 46 titles listed when doing an author search of his name on www.BarnesandNoble.com.

What he did know was that he wanted to be an artist.

Yes, at age eleven Hockney was more concerned with drawing pictures for the Bradford Grammar School's magazine and producing posters for the debating society than predicting his future leadership in the British Pop Art movement or a lifetime of artistic successes. But his art was all the wiser.

Hockney attended the Royal College of Art in London where he was first introduced to and experimented with Abstract Expressionism and other styles of painting in efforts of self-discovery. He befriended fellow student R.B.Ritaj who would recall in a preface to Los Angeles County Museum of Art's major retrospective of Hockney's work in 1988: "During our first days at the Royal College I spotted this boy with short black hair and huge glasses, wearing a boilersuit, making the most beautiful drawing I'd ever seen in an art school. It was of a skeleton. I told him I'd give him five quid for it. He thought I was a rich American. I was—I had $150 a month GI Bill money to support my wife and son. I kept buying drawings from him. I've still got them all. I've even got a very rare Hockney abstraction from his two-week abstract period."
