- Need for meaningful dialogue among border agencies within region. It is important for the regulatory agencies (bureau of standards, food and drugs division, Chief Veterinary Officers etc) to discuss ways in improving the trade environment while maintaining their respective mandates (i.e. to protect animal, plant and human health, as per the TBT and SPS agreements). The framework exists in CARICOM (e.g. CVOs do meet regularly, and CROSQ does facilitate the meeting of regional Bureaux of Standards), but the results are not being seen (hence the lack of harmonisation in standards throughout the region).
- Customs must be more trade facilitating than revenue generation

Addressing Non Tariff Barriers On Regional Trade In:

De-Fragmenting Africa Paul Brenton and Gozde Isik, Africa is not achieving its potential in regional trade This is of particular importance given the uncertainty surrounding the global economy and stagnation in traditional markets in Europe and North America and the emergence of Africa as a rising growth pole The contributions to this volume highlight the enormous scope for increased cross border trade in Africa in both goods and services and the reasons why such opportunities are not being exploited The varied contributions show that for effective regional integration policy makers must look beyond simply removing tariffs to address barriers on the ground that constrain the daily operations of ordinary producers and traders This requires a reform agenda covering both goods and services that puts in place appropriate regulations for integrated markets and builds the capacity of institutions that are essential for trade across borders The incidence of barriers to regional trade fall most heavily on the poor and women and prevents them from exploiting the opportunities that regional trade provides to diversify exports away from a narrow range of minerals and primary products that have been driving recent growth Regional trade can play a key role in delivering the jobs that are needed for Africa s young populations The chapters have been written in a non technical way to promote dialogue on regional integration in Africa amongst a broad audience that includes policy makers officials academics entrepreneurs consumers as well as the international development community

Strengthening Regional Trade Integration in South Asia Owais Hasan Khan,2021-03-05 This book brings forth the philosophical conceptual and practical contours of the trade regionalism provisions under the GATT WTO It analyses SAARC as the regional integration organisation of South Asia along with identifying major challenges and bottlenecks faced by it in the process of achieving regional integration It presents ways and methods through which SAARC can be made a more effective regional organisation The book predominantly focuses on trade regionalism However other areas of integration which have impacts on the trade regionalism are also examined like social and political integrations etc The book takes off from the premise that trade regionalism under SAARC has failed and has been marred by political and security concerns among its member nations It has failed to achieve its objective on all the three counts which are promoting peace development and economic cooperation However with the developing countries as members SAARC has great potential for trade integration Certain structural normative and organisation alteration along with favourable ideation can still make SAARC achieve its full potential The book also deals with the comparative analysis of SAARC regional integration with the regional integration under European Union and ASEAN Regarding comparative regionalism the discussion has been confined only to the EU and ASEAN The EU has been chosen because it is comparatively established as one of the most successful regional organisations in the contemporary world Whereas ASEAN has been chosen because of its similarity to the SAARC s economy society and political structure The analysis presented in the book is from the perspectives of international law and international relations theories and practise This book thus is of particular relevance to the students researchers academicians policymakers and practitioners of international trade law international relations and South Asian studies

Managing Global and Regional Trade Policy Without Fast Track Negotiating Authority United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Finance. Subcommittee on International Trade, 2000      A Glass Half Full Sanjay Kathuria, 2018-09-19 Trade has played a critical role in global poverty reduction In harnessing the potential of trade some of the most successful countries have developed strong trade relationships with their neighbors However many South Asian countries have trade regimes that often offset the positive impact of geography and proximity This report documents systematically the gaps between current and potential trade in South Asia and addresses important specific barriers that have held trade back These barriers include tariffs and paratariffs real and perceived nontariff barriers connectivity costs and the broader trust deficit This policy focused report unpacks these critical barriers to effective trade integration in South Asia through four in depth studies that produce new detailed on the ground knowledge Three of the studies are based on extensive stakeholder consultations Two studies also rely on tailored surveys The fourth study on tariffs benefits from new data on paratariffs The report also marshals new evidence showing how trading regimes in South Asia discriminate against each other Given the South Asian context incremental yet concrete steps aimed at tapping the potential of deeper integration are appropriate The report has been drafted in this spirit It offers precise actionable policy recommendations that could help achieve measurable progress in key areas of trade and integration that would be to the advantage of all countries in the region      International Court Authority Mikael Rask Madsen, 2018-06-28 An innovative interdisciplinary and far reaching examination of the actual reality of international courts International Court Authority challenges fundamental preconceptions about when why and how international courts become important and authoritative actors in national regional and international politics A stellar group of scholars investigate the challenges that international courts face in transforming the formal legal authority conferred by states into an actual authority in fact that is respected by potential litigants national actors legal communities and publics Alter Helfer and Madsen provide a novel framework for conceptualizing international court authority that focuses on the reactions and practices of these key audiences Eighteen scholars from the disciplines of law political science and sociology apply this framework to study thirteen international courts operating in Africa Latin America and Europe as well as on a global level Together the contributors document and explore important and interesting variations in whether the audiences that interact with international courts around the world embrace or reject the rulings of these judicial institutions Alter Helfer and Madsen s authority framework recognizes that international judges can and often do everything they should do to ensure that their rulings possess the gravitas and stature that national courts enjoy Yet even when imbued with these characteristics the parties to the dispute potential future litigants and the broader set of actors that monitor and respond to the court s activities may fail to acknowledge the rulings as binding or take meaningful steps to modify their behaviour in response to them For both specific judicial institutions and more generally the book documents and explains why most international courts possess de facto authority that is partial variable and highly dependent on a range of different audiences and contexts and thus is highly fragile An introduction situates the book's unique approach to conceptualizing international court authority within theoretical debates about the authority of global institutions International Court Authority also includes critical reflections on the authority framework from legal theorists international relations scholars a philosopher and an anthropologist The book's conclusion questions a number of widely shared assumptions about how social and political contexts facilitate or undermine international courts in developing de facto authority and political power

The Report: Kenya 2014 Oxford Business Group, 2014-11-13 The country has a strong private sector and received encouraging forecasts of new oil gas and water reserves which if harnessed appropriately bode well for future growth While a pending international court case resulting from prior elections provoked a measure of uncertainty the country's medium to long term economic outlook is robust With over 40% of the population under the age of 15 Kenya stands to benefit from a significant demographic dividend provided that sufficient jobs can be found when this population bulge enters the workforce The country has a reasonably sized industrial base competitive infrastructure and a large agricultural sector all of which offer opportunities for capital intensive investment

Sustainable Consumption Experience and Business Models in the Modern World Machado Carvalho, Maria Amélia, Rodrigues, Maria Antónia, 2023-12-21 In the face of escalating environmental degradation and dwindling natural resources the imperative for sustainable production and consumption has taken center stage compelling companies and consumers alike to seek a more sustainable path forward Sustainable consumption and production entail the utilization of goods and services that strive to minimize detrimental impacts on the environment This involves reducing the utilization of natural resources toxic substances and polluting emissions all while ensuring the satisfaction of future generations needs Sustainable Consumption Experience and Business Models in the Modern World explores the crucial interplay between sustainability businesses and consumers From a business standpoint the pressing concerns surrounding sustainability drive the emergence of innovative sustainable products services and business models Simultaneously conscientious consumers increasingly gravitate towards sustainable alternatives embracing the purchase of eco friendly products and services engaging in product exchanges do it yourself initiatives acquiring second hand items and participating in the sharing economy Designed for professionals students and researchers in the field of sustainable marketing this book covers a wide range of disciplines including but not limited to sustainability sustainable marketing green products second hand goods and consumer behavior

Regional Trade Agreements David A. Gantz, 2009 The proliferation of regional trade agreements RTAs is one of the most economically significant politically important and for some troubling developments within the world trading system since the WTO Agreements entered into force in 1995 The WTO Secretariat has predicted that by 2010 nearly 400 such preferential trade agreements could be in force with many WTO Member States being party to multiple RTAs This movement toward increased regionalism may accelerate if the Doha Development Round of WTO negotiations remains stalemated but will likely continue regardless of whether Doha is ultimately concluded This volume is designed to introduce the reader to the world of RTAs for general understanding of the place of RTAs in the global trading system appreciation of the context and legal content of particular RTAs and as a basis for further study and analysis An extensive bibliography and list of Internet links are included Part I discusses the economic policy and developmental issues arising from regionalism and then considers the WTO legal regime as it affects and is affected by RTAs The focus there is on free trade agreements FTAs and customs unions CUs regulated by Article XXIV of GATT 1994 or Article V of the General Agreement on Trade in Services and on efforts within the WTO regime to minimize the negative effects of such departures from the core GATT WTO principle of non discrimination most favored nation treatment Part II discusses the multiple FTAs concluded by the United States with various trading partners since 1985 beginning with an analysis of the political legal and policy considerations that affect the United States ability to conclude international trade agreements Extensive coverage is given to the North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA and to the Central American Dominican Republic United States FTA CAFTA DR NAFTA is important because it represents by far the largest trade volume generated under any U S FTA and because it has become the model for most subsequent U S FTAs as well as many concluded by other nations CAFTA DR embodies legal changes reflecting ten years experience under NAFTA It also exemplifies the increasing use of FTAs by the United States as a mechanism for encouraging economic development democratic institutions and the rule of law Analysis at varying levels of detail is provided for all other U S FTAs including those with Colombia Panama and Korea for which Congressional approval is pending and for the unique bilateral trade agreement with Vietnam Part III analyzes five other important RTAs The European Union EU Central American Common Market MERCOSUR South African Customs Union and ASEAN FTA These diverse accords each play an important role in the intra regional political and economic relations of the parties and exemplify a broad range of ambitious approaches to expanding intra regional trade and commerce on four continents The EU is likely the most successful RTA in history and serves as a model for other CUs including those discussed in Part III Like globalization the RTA phenomenon is here to stay WTO member government officials international practitioners and law students aspiring to careers in international trade law must learn to deal effectively with the challenges and opportunities presented by such agreements Regional Trade Agreements Law Policy and Practice makes a useful contribution to existing literature and will be particularly helpful to governmental officials academics practitioners and postgraduate students wishing to learn more about the how and what of RTAs Readers searching for information about a particular agreement can gain knowledge and understanding by reading a single chapter dealing with a particular agreement but reading the entire book will allow the reader to more fully benefit from both the insight and experience of the author as well as to fully understand the interplay between politics economics and law in the RTA negotiating and implementation process World Trade Review By presenting a comprehensive introduction both to RTAs in general and by providing comprehensive introductions to many RTAs that are in force throughout the world today Professor Gantz has written a text that should be used by both practitioners and students who wish to gain an understanding of RTAs and their relationship with international trade and foreign relations Trade Law and Development Gantz expertly weaves economic and political considerations into his legal analysis Regional Trade Agreements Law Policy and Practice makes a useful contribution to existing literature and will be particularly helpful to governmental officials academics practitioners and postgraduate students wishing to learn more about the how and what of RTAs The Journal of World Trade Review

Unlocking the Potential of Regional Economic Cooperation and Integration in South Asia Making Regional Integration Work Ursula Hermelink, Mathieu Loridan, 2015

Intraregional trade among Arab States is low compared to other regions This publication offers insights into the main challenges to trade within and beyond the region and suggests how to address them It shares the perspectives of exporters and importers obtained through surveys The surveys are part of an ITC series of developing country projects on non tariff measures NTMs This is the first such publication to examine country surveys in a regional context focusing on bottlenecks arising from NTMs including government imposed strict regulations procedures that make compliance difficult and inefficiencies in the trade related business environment The findings show that many trade impediments originate in the region and the obstacles could be solved by tackling procedural bottlenecks and by facilitating trade

Regional Integration and Global Free Trade Mark S. LeClair, 1997

Recent trade initiatives suggest that there is renewed interest in forming tariff free regional trading zones Running concurrent with this move toward regional integration is the multilateral process of global trade liberalization This text looks at the two issues Chapter one examines the inherent conflict between the two main approaches to reducing barriers to trade economic integration and multilateralism Chapter two provides a theoretical framework for evaluating the relative accomplishments of both regional trading blocs and multilateral free trade Chapter three utilizes a number of theoretical constructs to evaluate the effects of regional trading arrangements and discusses the trade history of the European Union Chapter four provides an analysis of the trade effects of tariff reductions achieved under the GATT system and chapter five provides recommendations for ensuring continued progress in multilateral tariff reductions under the banner of the World Trade Organization

Towards an African Common Market for Agricultural Products Suffyan Koroma, 2008

This study examines the key legal and economic issues involved in establishing an African Union Common Market in Agricultural Products In particular it examines how national and regional policies and instruments can be used to foster trade in strategic products and recommends strategies as to how the goal of a continental common market might be attained The analysis reveals that there exists a broad consensus that increased inter regional trade liberalisation will be beneficial to the continent Also published in French and Arabic What Shoprite and Woolworths Can Tell Us about Non-tariff Barriers Nick Charalambides, South African Institute of International Affairs, 2013 The paper discusses the impact of non tariff barriers NTBs in the Southern African Development Community region It draws on the growing body of literature on NTBs pertaining to regional trade in Southern and Eastern Africa but importantly it supplements this with the experience of the private sector in the region It reviews the current processes and achievements in addressing NTBs within Southern Africa Practical measures are proposed to facilitate the removal of NTBs within Southern Africa informed by the lessons from other regions The paper focuses particularly on how to address those NTBs to regional trade that are the result of inappropriate design and implementation These include but are not necessarily limited to licensing rules import permits standards as well as their implementation and customs procedures It does not look at those barriers that are overtly trade restricting by intention for example antidumping duties quantitative restrictions import levies The former subset of NTBs is likely to be less transparent but more prevalent and representative of the constraints Southern African traders face in selling merchandise across borders on a day to day basis Review of the Technical Cooperation Activities of UNCTAD and Their Financing ,2010 SADCC ...
