Advanced MIDI Programming with the MC-303

The MC-303 Groove Box adds a new dimension to any sequencer based system. To access all of the sounds and features in this type of setup, you will need to run the MC-303 in what is referred to as "Sound Module" mode. The purpose of this document is to help you use the MC-303 in Sound Module mode and to explore the effect of certain MIDI messages and how they can impact your music. First, we will show you how to select sounds via MIDI. Then, we will cover editing sounds with controller, RPN, and NRPN messages. Finally, we will examine the construction and use of system exclusive commands.

I. Overview

The MC-303 can be used in one of the following two MIDI modes:

Normal mode

Records Patterns and Songs
 RPS and Arpeggiator
 Real time control via front panel knobs
 Mute parts and Rhythm set sounds in real time
 Not Multi-Timbral via MIDI

Sound Module mode

No Patterns or Songs, sound source only
 Disabled
 Real time control via MIDI only
 Front panel disabled (except volume control)
 16 part Multi-Timbral sound source

In Sound Module mode, you will need to make all changes from your sequencer. You can use Program Changes and Continuous Controller messages to accomplish common functions including Filter Sweeps, Vibrato, etc. System Exclusive messages can be used for more extensive editing.

To enter Sound Module mode:

1. Turn off the MC-303.
2. Hold down [PLAY MODE] and turn on the power.

To return to Normal mode:

1. Turn the power off and back on.

II. Selecting Sounds

The sounds in the MC-303 can be selected via MIDI by using bank select and program change messages. Some computer based sequencers have patch lists or 'templates' available for various products. These 'templates' allow you to select from a list of patch names, and will then send out the appropriate messages for you. You should check with the manufacturer of your particular sequencer to see if they have a MC-303 template available. If not, you must enter the proper bank select and program change messages to choose a sound.

To select a sound in the MC-303 you will need to send three (3) messages from your sequencer (2 Continuous Controller (CC) messages and a Program Change (PC) message). A continuous controller is a message that is defined in the MIDI specification. There are 128 different CCs that perform a number of different functions. Volume (CC7), Panning (CC10), Modulation (CC1), and Hold (CC64) are commonly used controller messages. Controller 0 and 32 are used to select banks of sounds. If you look at the Tone List on pages 85-89 of the Owner's Manual, you will notice that each sound has an associated PC and CC0 value. CC32 will always be set to 0 on the MC-303. You can usually insert these messages in the event list editor of your sequencer to be played back with your song. If you use this method, insert some space between each message (a few clock pulses should be fine). Here are some examples:

To select "101 Bass 1" send:

Message	Value
CC00	64
CC32	00
PC	10

To select "12str.Guitar" send:

Message	Value
CC00	65
CC32	00
PC	58

To select "Sky Vox" send:

Message	Value
CC00	71
CC32	00
PC	35
