

Our method to detect eye&mouth

- When application of face image recognition is limited to the specific purpose, in the case which one face is always clearly obtained, algorithm for extracting face parts becomes extremely simple by using SYMMETRY.
- We focus bilateral symmetries between and within face parts and detect the symmetry measure on face parts using the gradient directions
- We determine width and height of face parts extraction windows from horizontally and vertically projected histograms of symmetry measures.
- Then we use template matching method to detect eyes and mouth in those reduced search areas.
