Beck, Christina Ionescu, 2017-05-01 This volume presents in depth and contextualized analyses of a wealth of visual materials. These documents provide viewers with a mesmerizing and informative glimpse into how the early modern world was interpreted by image makers and presented to viewers during a period that spans from manuscript culture to the age of caricature. The premise of this collection responds to a fundamental question: how are early modern texts, objects, and systems of knowledge imaged and consumed through bimodal hybrid or intermedial products that rely on both words and pictures to convey meaning? The twelve contributors to this collection go beyond traditional lines of inquiry into word and image interaction to deconstruct visual dynamics and politics to show how images were shaped, manipulated, displayed, and distributed to represent the material world, to propagate official and commercial messages to support religious practice and ideology, or to embody relations of power. These chapters are anchored in various theoretical and disciplinary points of departure such as the history of collections and collecting, literary theory and criticism, the histories of science, art history, and visual culture, word and image studies, as well as print culture and book illustration. Authors draw upon a wide range of visual material hitherto insufficiently explored and placed in context in some cases hidden in museums and archives or previously assessed only from a disciplinary standpoint that favored either the image or the text but not both in relation to each other. They include manuscript illuminations, representing compilers and collections, frontispieces, and other accompanying plates published in catalogues and museographies; astronomical diagrams; mixed pictographic-alphabetic accounting documents; Spanish baroque paintings; illustrative frontispieces or series inspired by or designed for single novels or anthologies; anatomical drawings featured in encyclopedic publications; visual patterns of volcanic formations; engravings representing the New World that accompany non-fictional travelogues; commonplace books that interlace text and images; and graphic satire. Geographically, the collection covers imperial centers: Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, and Spain, as well as their colonial periphery: New France, Mexico, Central America, South America, in particular Brazil, parts of Africa, and the island of Ceylon. Emblematic and thought-provoking, these images are only fragments of the multifaceted and comprehensive visual mosaic created during the early modern period, but their consideration has far-reaching implications. Image Studies Sunil Manghani, 2012-11-27 Image Studies offers an engaging introduction to visual and image studies. In order to better understand images and visual culture, the book seeks to bridge between theory and practice, asking the reader to think critically about images and image practices but also simultaneously to make images and engage with image makers and image-making processes. Looking across a range of domains and disciplines, we find the image is never a single static thing. Rather, the image can be a concept, an object, a picture, or a medium, and all these things combined. At the heart of this book is the idea of an ecology of images through which we can examine the full life of an image to understand how an image resonates within a complex set of contexts, processes, and uses. Part 1 covers theoretical perspectives on the image, supplemented with practical entries on making, researching, and writing with images. Part 2 explores specific image practices.
