

An abstract painting featuring bold, expressive brushstrokes in shades of red, black, and white. The composition is dynamic, with thick applications of paint creating a sense of movement and depth. The reds range from deep maroon to bright, almost white highlights, while the black strokes provide strong contrast and structure. The overall effect is one of raw energy and emotional intensity.

Cognition In Practice Mind Mathematics And Culture In Everyday Life:

Cognition in Practice Jean Lave, 1988-07-29 Most previous research on human cognition has focused on problem solving and has confined its investigations to the laboratory. As a result it has been difficult to account for complex mental processes and their place in culture and history. In this startling indeed disorienting study Jean Lave moves the analysis of one particular form of cognitive activity arithmetic problem solving out of the laboratory into the domain of everyday life. In so doing she shows how mathematics in the real world like all thinking is shaped by the dynamic encounter between the culturally endowed mind and its total context a subtle interaction that shapes both the human subject and the world within which it acts. The study is focused on mundane daily activities such as grocery shopping for best buys in the supermarket, dieting and so on. Innovative in its method, fascinating in its findings, the research is above all significant in its theoretical contributions. It offers a cogent critique of conventional cognitive theory, turning for an alternative to recent social theory and weaving a compelling synthesis from elements of culture theory, theories of practice and Marxist discourse. The result is a new way of understanding human thought processes, a vision of cognition as the dialectic between persons acting and the settings in which their activity is constituted. The book will appeal to anthropologists for its novel theory of the relation of cognition to culture and context, to cognitive scientists and educational theorists and to the plain folks who form its subject and who will recognize themselves in it, a rare accomplishment in the modern social sciences. Cognition in Practice Jean Lave, 1988-08-11 In this innovative study Jean Lave moves the analysis of one particular form of cognitive activity arithmetic problem solving out of the laboratory and into the domain of everyday life. In so doing she shows how mathematics in the real world such as that entailed in grocery shopping or dieting is like all thinking shaped by the dynamic encounter between the culturally endowed mind and its total context a subtle interaction that shapes both the human subject and the world within which it acts.

Situated Cognition David Kirshner, James Anthony Whitson, 1997 This book is a result of a symposium at a recent annual meeting of the American Educational Research Association that explored foundational issues relative to situated cognition theory. Its chapters contribute to discourse about repositioning situated cognition theory within the broader supporting disciplines and to resolving the problematics addressed within the book. There is a cumulative vision to the book; its theme is that the notion of the individual in situated cognition theory needs to be fundamentally reformulated. No theoretical reconfiguration of the social world or of social practices can overcome an individual cast in the dualist tradition. This reformulation probes the physiological, psychoanalytic, and semiotic constitution of persons. Chapters by authors cover a wide range of topics including transfer of training, arguing that traditional cognitive psychology has found precious little evidence of people's ability to apply knowledge gained in one context to the problems encountered in another ecosocial systems a new object of inquiry for situated cognition theory in which the primary units of analysis are not things or people but processes and practices how linkages between discursive practices are manifested as semiotic chaining of signifiers for individuals engaged in everyday activities at home or at school how the ability to function in ways that are consistent with logic emerges not through reflective abstraction on actions but through an enhanced sense of agency as more responsible roles are adopted in daily life practices the mutual constitution of social and individual knowledge familiar terms and concepts normally available through linguistic labels are cultural models to be distinguished from the variegated and hidden mid level meanings that reflect their situated uses in social activity the material neurological substrate through which cultural models and mid level meanings emerge and how learning environments can be structured to take advantage of the perceptual underpinnings of cognition

Handbook of Research on Educational Communications and Technology David H. Jonassen, 2004 This edition of this handbook updates and expands its review of the research theory issues and methodology that constitute the field of educational communications and technology Organized into seven sectors it profiles and integrates the following elements of this rapidly changing field The Debated Mind Harvey Whitehouse, 2020-08-12 In a further development of the nature nurture debate this collection of articles questions how the human mind influences the content and organization of culture In the study of mental activity can the effects of evolution and history be teased apart Evolutionary psychologists argue that cultural transmission is constrained by our genetic inheritance Few social and cultural anthropologists have found this argument to be relevant to their work and many would doubt its validity This book uniquely pitches the arguments for innatism against ethnographic perspectives that call into question the theoretical foundations of orthodox evolutionary biology and cognitive science Ultimately the aim of the debate is to create an original set of mutually compatible theories that will open up new areas for interdisciplinary research Handbook of Research for Educational Communications and Technology David Jonassen, Marcy Driscoll, 2003-12-08 First Published in 2008 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Knowing Bodies, Moving Minds Liora Bresler, 2013-11-11 This book aims to define new theoretical practical and methodological directions in educational research centered on the role of the body in teaching and learning Based on our phenomenological experience of the world it draws on perspectives from arts education and aesthetics as well as curriculum theory cultural anthropology and ethnomusicology These are arenas with a rich untapped cache of experience and inquiry that can be applied to the notions of schooling teaching and learning The book provides examples of state of the art empirical research on the body in a variety of educational settings Diverse art forms curricular settings educational levels and cultural traditions are selected to demonstrate the complexity and richness of embodied knowledge as they are manifested through institutional structures disciplines and specific practices Knowledge and Interaction Andrea A. diSessa, Mariana Levin, Nathaniel J.S. Brown, 2015-12-07 Decades of research in the cognitive and learning sciences have led to a growing recognition of the incredibly multi faceted nature of human knowing and learning Up to now this multifaceted nature has been visible mostly in distinct and often competing communities of researchers From a purely scientific perspective siloed science where different traditions refuse to speak with one another or merely ignore one another is unacceptable This ambitious volume attempts to kick start a serious new line of work that merges or properly articulates different traditions with their divergent historical theoretical and methodological commitments that nonetheless both focus on the highly detailed analysis of processes of knowing and learning as they unfold in interactional contexts in real time Knowledge and Interaction puts two traditions in dialogue with one another Knowledge Analysis KA which draws on intellectual roots in developmental psychology and cognitive modeling and focuses on the nature and form of individual knowledge systems and Interaction Analysis IA which has been prominent in approaches that seek to understand and explain learning as a sequence of real time moves by individuals as they interact with interlocutors learning environments and the world around them The volume s four part organization opens up space for both substantive contributions on areas of conceptual and empirical work as well as opportunities for reflection integration and coordination

When Diversity Works Catherine R. Cooper, 2001 In industrialized countries students pathways through school to work have been described as an academic pipeline Democracies hold an ideal of access to educational opportunities by choice and advancement by merit but in reality as students move through primary and secondary school to college the numbers of ethnic minority and low income youth in the academic pipeline shrink This special double issue addresses the academic pipeline problem by focusing on three key themes a involving all families in their children's schooling b identifying ways the academic pipeline can be kept open for diverse students and c helping students bridge their worlds of families peers schools and communities This volume contributes to both policy and practice in local state and national settings where concerns for making diversity work are at the top of schools and youth organizations agendas

Review of Research in Education, 1998 Applying Cognitive Learning Theory to Adult Learning Daniele D. Flannery, 1993-11-23 While much is written about adult learning basic tenets of cognitive theory are often taken for granted The purpose of this volume of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education is to present an understanding of basic cognitive theory and to apply this understanding to the teaching learning exchange It is the premise of this volume that understanding adults' cognitive learning strategies is essential to facilitating successful learning This the 59th issue of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Growing Up with Science Kjell Härnqvist, A. S. V. Burgen, 1997 The contributors examine the need to tackle scientific literacy from the beginning of education even at the pre school period and discusses the kinds of scientific understanding skills and attitudes which should be introduced at this stage

Performance Improvement Quarterly, 2001

Designing Classroom Research Margaret A. Eisenhart, Hilda Borko, 1993 Advancing Faculty Learning Through Interdisciplinary Collaboration Elizabeth G. Creamer, 2005-08-16 This volume addresses the limitations of an instrumental perspective on collaboration and explores why stakeholders in higher education should refocus attention on collaboration as a source of faculty learning The chapters establish a theoretical basis for thinking about faculty learning and then use case studies to explore this topic in the context of service or outreach research and teaching Included as well are a meta analysis of the cases to demonstrate what they teach about contexts that promote faculty learning and a discussion of the implications of the analysis for higher education policy and practice including the evaluation of collaboratively produced work The framework and cases are useful to an audience of academic leaders committed to faculty development and to creating hiring promotion and tenure policies that reward the full range of scholarly pursuits They should also prove instructive to faculty embarking on interdisciplinary teaching research or outreach activities This is the 102nd issue of the Jossey Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Teaching and Learning
