Introduction

Practice Teaching gives you the opportunity to learn through teaching real students. There is no better way to gain confidence and competency in classroom teaching than to get in there and learn from doing. As you teach, an assessor records notes - providing written and oral feedback at the end of the teaching session.

You will have completed the Introduction to TESOL component (either online or through a five day in-class course) and so have a basic idea of what you need to do. If you completed the Introduction to TESOL component through an in-class course, you will have prepared a lesson plan and had some practice teaching your peers. If you completed the Introduction to TESOL component online you will have viewed video and a set of files (also linked below from this document) illustrating how to prepare a lesson plan and how to teach. Since all of our courses should be completed within 12 months don't leave it too long.

There will be a minimal number of hours required for Practice Teaching according to the course you are enrolled in:
 iTESOL Certificate: No hours of practice teaching required
 Certificate III in TESOL (offered in Australia and NZ): Four (4) hours of practice teaching required
 Certificate in TESOL (offered outside of Australia and NZ): Six (6) hours of practice teaching required
