CHAPTER 9

CONSOLIDATION OWNERSHIP ISSUES

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Q9-1 Preferred stock of the subsidiary is eliminated in the consolidation process in a manner comparable to that used in eliminating the common stock of the subsidiary. For preferred shares held by the parent company, a proportionate share of subsidiary income and net assets assigned to the preferred shares is eliminated against the balance in the parent's investment account. Subsidiary income and net assets assigned to preferred shares not held by the parent are included as a part of the noncontrolling interest along with the balances assigned to noncontrolling interest for common stock not held by the parent. The claim of the preferred shareholders normally is computed before the common stock is eliminated so that any priority claim associated with the preferred stock can be properly recognized and assigned to the correct shareholder group.

Q9-2 All preferred shares held by the parent are eliminated against the balance in the investment account. Shares held by unrelated parties are included in the total assigned to the noncontrolling interest.

Q9-3 Preferred dividends normally are deducted in arriving at income available to common shareholders. When preferred dividends are paid by the subsidiary to shareholders other than the parent, the income accruing to the common shares held by the parent company is reduced.
