Controllers in Web Dynpro:

Question 2: What is Component Controller?

Component Controller is the King of all Controllers. It is the backbone of your Web Dynpro Component. It is like a Desktop or Top Include for your program. It contains the entire activity of your Web-Dynpro Component.

Question 3: What is an Interface Controller?

Whenever we want views, nodes or methods of a particular web dynpro component to be available to other the outside world (i.e. other webdynpro components), we make use of interface controller. Interface Controller is created by default when a webdynpro component is created. Interface Controller would generally come into picture when you are doing component usage of some sort in web dynpro (i.e. re-using views/methods/nodes of one Web-component in another).

Question 4: What is a Custom Controller?

When your Component Controller grows big in size (say more than 10-15 views and corresponding control nodes, methods, events, event handlers etc.), it might become tough to handle everything in the Component Controller. In such a scenario, you can create one or more custom controllers and modularize or segregate the nodes into separate parts using Custom Controller.

Question 5: Would you prefer creating multiple Custom Controllers OR would you go for separate Web Dynpro components and then do Component usage?

This would actually depend on the requirement, but ideally separate Web dynpro components should be created and reused. One can also use the assistant class for segregating business logic.

Question 6: How many component controllers can a Web Dynpro Component have?

Component Controller is only one. You can create multiple controllers, but those are called Custom Controllers.

Note: If you are asked about the Web Dynpro architecture, you should talk about both the MVC framework and the controllers.

Question 7: Suppose your Web Dynpro has no nodes in the Component Context. Will all 10 the nodes be available in the interface context? Nodes from the Component context are available to the interface controller only when the nodes are declared as interface nodes. To create an interface node, set the interface property to yes, as shown in the screenshot below.

Interface Node: Yes

Input Element (Ext.): No

To create an interface node, set the interface property to yes, as shown in the screenshot to the right:
