Scenes from the American Working Class Steven Michels, 2024-12-15 The twelve chapters of Scenes from the American Working Class use the lens of political theory to explore the working life of Americans as it has been depicted in popular culture. It covers a wide range of experiences and voices from the past hundred plus years.

World War II and the American Dream Margaret Crawford, 1995 with essays by Peter S Reed Robert Friedel Margaret Crawford Greg Hise Joel Davidson and Michael Sorkin Among the legacies of World War II was a massive building program on a scale that America had not seen before and has not seen since. The war effort created thousands of factories homes even entire cities throughout the country. Many of these structures still stand the physical evidence of an unprecedented ability to harness the power and resources of a people. The complex legacy of this most notable period in our nation's history is discussed from a different perspective by each contributor. Peter S Reed Associate Curator of the Department of Architecture and Design at the Museum of Modern Art details the rise of modern architecture during the war housing designs that used the latest ideas in prefabricated construction methods lightweight materials innovative technologies and a corporate and institutional aesthetic that helped popularize modernism as the appropriate image of American industrial might and corporate success. Robert Friedel Professor of History at the University of Maryland documents the development of new materials especially plastics and discusses techniques for employing traditional materials in novel ways. Margaret Crawford Chair of the History and Theory of Architecture Program at the Southern California Institute of Architecture explores the struggle of women and blacks for public housing. Greg Hise Assistant Professor in the School of Urban and Regional Planning at the University of Southern California considers how the construction of large scale residential communities near defense plants prefigured postwar suburbia. Joel Davidson historian of the World War II and the American Dream exhibition analyzes the impact of the war's building program on the postwar military industrial complex. Finally Michael Sorkin architect and writer explores the migration of certain values and aesthetics from the necessities of war to the choices of peace. Among these are images of speed camouflage ruin totalization and flight. Copublished with The National Building Museum Washington D C

Reinventing Education Louis V. Gerstner, 1995 The Next Century Schools program was launched by the RJR Nabisco Foundation to fund bold ideas for fundamental change in public education. This is the landmark book about that program and the schools that have participated. Now is the time for action and this book is about one thing only solutions.
