Seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject Business economics. Offline Marketing and Online Marketing, grade none. University of Leicester, language English, abstract I. Introduction. Competing for the future. Today organizations have to find answers to questions that might be asked in near future by both customers and competitors. In his book On Marketing by Kotler, written in 1999, the author is drawing a dramatic picture of the future for the competitive situation in 2005. Companies are unable to sustain competitive advantages outside of patents. Although his scenario maybe came not true, the point is interesting. How do companies find the right way to respond to new developments, e-business, globalization etc. Strategy is about the long term development. Organizations need to collect information of the market, they have to define strategies and difficulty enough they need to implement the strategies. In order to remain a market leader, Hamel and Prahalad advise their reader in an article from 1994 to pause for a moment and ask questions like: Who are the customers today and who will be the customers in the future? Who are presently our competitors and who will compete with us in the future? What is our competitive advantage today and what will make us a leader in the future? Models like Ansoff's matrix or Porter's 5 Forces make today's situation visible and allow to formulate strategic options. The task is to find and implement strategic options that allow the best allocation of resources in the future. MASTERING STRATEGY Jeffrey Rigsby, Guy Greco, 2003-01-08. Up to the minute examples of market leading companies and strategists in action. Strategy that is both creative and pragmatic is today's number one competitive edge. It has been the driving force behind the success of firms such as McDonald's and Microsoft and executives like Sam Walton and Jack Welch. Mastering Strategy examines best practices and examples from these and other companies, CEOs and academics and details how executives can benchmark them to overcome new questions and problems in today's harder, faster, smarter world. From achieving market leadership to managing change, today's business leaders must not only stay atop the latest trends but also understand and improve the core issues that drive their organizations. By distilling scores of resources into one powerful volume, authors Jeffrey Rigsby and Guy Greco have produced a guidebook for creating new and exciting corporate strategy. Examples include Strategies of corporations such as Nike and Procter & Gamble. Insights of CEOs from Bill Hewlett to Ray Kroc. Wisdom of thought leaders from Warren Bennis to Robert Kaplan.

Management John M. Ivancevich, Peter Lorenzi, Steven J. Skinner, 1997. Including coverage of topics such as diversity, cycle time, creativity, learning organizations, and the Internet, this work on quality and competitiveness contains exercises and case studies.

About André Berndt, 2013-12. Essay from the year 2003 in the subject Business Economics. Business Management. Corporate Governance. grade Excellent. Grade A. University of Jyväskylä School of Business and Economics. Department of Management and Leadership. course Competitive Strategies. language English. abstract: The book Competing for the Future by Gary Hamel and C. K. Prahalad deals mainly with issues that companies and their managers have to do today if they want to create the markets of the future and/or revolutionise their industries. The authors describe their book as a guide for managers who are willing to focus on the long term and not only short-term success of the corporation, a guide to imagine the future and afterwards to create it. Like the authors state in the end of the book, it is not only about making a difference to managers but also about making a difference to customers as well as employees. The book is divided into 12 chapters which I am succeeding in going to summarise.

Multidisciplinary Practice Gary A. Munneke, Ann L. MacNaughton, 2001. The trend toward the Multidisciplinary Law Practice (MDP) is revolutionizing the way legal firms are preparing to deliver their services. The MDP concept will affect every law practice, large or small. Even lawyers working outside the private practice arena will find their lives altered by the changes now starting to take place. This work offers an examination of the MDP initiative from every angle, including multiple appendices, including an issues list and MDP hypotheticals and models.
